BULGARIAN REVOLUTIONISTS DEFEAT THE SULTAN'S HORDES IN SANGUINARY ENCOUNTERS

Fire and Sword the Only Rule Acknowledged in Blood-Stained Macedonia. Costing Thousands of Lives.

RUSSIAN FLEET SAILS FOR HOME

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sofia, Aug. 23. — From eastern Adrianople come reports of more fighting, which so far appears to be resulting chiefly in favor of the revolutionists. Many villages have been burned and their inhabitants have taken refuge across the Bulgarian frontier. After a long fight at Stoiloro the insurgents defeated a detachment of Turkish troops, which lost 20 killed and wounded. At Chanagasko, near Surovicovo, the insurgents are reported to have annihilated an entire Turkish regiment.

At Bulanikzera, near Ternovo, 75 revolutionists are credited with defeating a Turkish battalion. The villages of Andermis and Enrik, near Vasiliko, have been burned to ashes.

The Turks have bombarded and destroyed the monastery of Constantina near Losengrad, where 50 insurgents had fortified themselves. The villages of Bakdgik, Konakara, Evren, Dingisco and Brusheva have all been burned and their inhabitants have fled. The large village of Drumbegle near Losengrad has been burned by Bashi-Bazouks. The villages of Buch, with 300 houses, and Rakoro, 200 houses, situated in the vilayet of Monastir, have also been burned by Turkish troops. Two hundred women and children from these villages are now begging in the streets of Monastir.

Court to Try Insurgents.

The Turkish government has organized a special court at Monastir to try the captured insurgents. The tribunal is composed of a Turkish president, three other Turks, two Greeks and one Albanian. It will partake of the character of a criminal court and not of a court martial.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 23.—The Russian Black sea squadron which was ordered to Turkish waters and which arrived at Iniada, Eastern European Turkey, August 19, in order to support Russia's demands on the sultan, growing out of the assassination of M. Rostowski, Russian consul at Monastir, sailed today for Sebastopol, the squadron's point of departure.

The recall followed on a notification from the porte that the sultan had ordered all the Russian demands to be complied with.

The dispatch received from M. Zinovieff, Russian ambassador at Constantinople, announcing that the sultan had yielded completely to Russia's demands, was as follows:

"The porte has taken the following measures to fulfill the demands of the Russian government: In addition to the condemnation and execution of M. Rostkowski's murderers and the punishment of their accomplices, those officers who made disrespectful allusions to M. Rostkowski are dismissed from the service. A careful search is being made for the persons who fired at the consul's carriage.

Other Officials Punished.

"All the officials, 24 in number, whose names were handed to the porte as objects of unfavorable comment by the Russian ambassador, are relieved of their posts and handed over to justice. All private persons mentioned in the same list as guilty of various offenses will likewise be tried.

"Ismail Hakl Pasha, the chief of police at Palanka, province of Uskub, is restored to his post. The persons under arrest for accusing Mussulmans of outrage and abuse are liberated.

"Husseln Hilmi, inspector general of Macedonia, is reprimanded. The chiefs of gendarmerie and police at Salonica are replaced.

"The porte has ordered the appointment of the gendarmerie of several foreign officers whose names will be announced later, and finally all the military, civil and judicial authorities have received the strictest orders to take measures to secure order and tranquility."

The news has reached St. Petersburg from Brussels, that the porte has requested Belgium to nominate four officers for the Turkish gendarmerie.

Appealed to the Kaiser.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 23.—The porte's reply accepting the Russian demands was delivered 12 hours after the presentation of the Russian note—a promptitude most unusual in the history of Turkish diplomacy. Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, and Naum Pasha, thereupon called on M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador, and requested the withdrawal of the Russian squadron from Turkish waters on the ground that its presence tended to encourage the insurrection.

On the receipt of a favorable reply from St. Petersburg, M. Zinovieff telegraphed the order of withdrawal to Admiral Kreiger, commanding the Russian squadron at Iniada. A rumor has been current that the sultan appealed to the German emperor to use his good offices at St. Petersburg in favor of the recall of the Russian squadron.

An extraordinary council of ministers assembled at Yildiz Kiosk yesterday to consider the situation in the interior and discuss the military measures rendered necessary by it. The sultan had on Friday sought the advice of the French ambassador.

News from Adrianople represents the situation in that vilayet as verging on a panic. The insurgents have destroyed

SHAMROCK III. WILL GAIN MORE TIME ALLOWANCE

Challenger Will Be Remeasured at Erie Basin Today With Her Anchor and Cable Aboard, According to the Regulations.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 23.—Unless all signs fail Shamrock III., when she is remeasured at the Erie Basin tomorrow, will not only take off enough ballast to make up the missing anchor and cable, but as much again for the purpose of shortening her waterline. If this report be true, she will probably receive considerably more than two minutes time allowance, instead of only one minute and fifty-seven seconds, which she got under her original measurement.

The Shamrock will be re-measured by C. D. Mower early tomorrow morning and afterward will be taken to Sandy Hook and given a short trial spin preparatory to Tuesday's race over the triangular course.

Shamrock I. and Shamrock III. left the Horseshoe early today and were towed to Erie Basin to be put in dry dock. Erin followed soon afterward, with Sir Thomas and his guests, and the Sunbeam, the tender of Reliance, waited until they were out of sight and then towed the Reliance away from her moorings.

With jib and mainsail set Capt. Barr drilled his men over and over again in the maneuver of coming about. The practice lasted for two hours, and when the men had been well warmed up Reliance was swung around again into the Horseshoe and moored.

Mr. Iselin left early for New Rochelle, and the Sunbeam, with Herbert C. Leeds, Dr. Monahan and Nat Herreshoff, sped on to Erie Basin, carrying an extra gaff for Reliance. Mr. Herreshoff saw the gaff carefully deposited at the basin and spent some time measuring it. He refused to explain his errand, but it was understood that the gaff was to be used in heavy weather.

Then the Sunbeam started up to New York, and it was said that she would return to the Hook by midnight with Mr. Iselin. In the meantime Erin has steamed to Seagate, where Sir Thomas and his guests landed to make a call at the Atlantic Yacht club station and boarded Commodore Robert E. Tod's yacht Thistle, where they attended divine services. In the party were Gen. and Mrs. Corbin, the earl and countess of Shaftesbury, Col. and Mrs. Sharman Crawford, Col. Neill, Gen. Bates and Dr. Neale. The party landed and went to dinner at the Oriental hotel as guests of Commodore Tod.

The Erin returned tonight to Sandy Hook and early tomorrow morning will proceed to the Battery, where the earl and countess of Shaftesbury will be met by Commodore Tod and taken through Central park, while Sir Thomas goes to Erie Basin to witness the re-measurement of Shamrock III.

The measurement will take place at 9 o'clock. There will be present Lewis Cass Ledyard or some other member of the challenge committee, Col. Sharmon Crawford, Nat Herreshoff, Sir Thomas, William Fife, Mr. Iselin and the regatta committee. The rumor that Reliance was to be re-measured was denied tonight at the New York Yacht club.

TWO MEN KILLED IN NEWSPAPER TRAIN WRECK

Jumped Track at Curve While Running at the Rate of a Mile a Minute.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 23.—A special train on the New York Central railroad carrying New York City newspapers was wrecked at Gulf Bridge, in this city, today.

Engineer Robert Lilley and Fireman Peter Conley, both of Albany, were killed and employes of the World, the Sun, the Rochester News Company and the American and Journal were severely injured. Conductor Erhardt and several other members of the train's crew were slightly injured.

The train, which was running at the rate of a mile a minute, was composed of an engine and three express cars. In rounding the sharp gulf bridge curve, the engine jumped the track and landed at the foot of the embankment into a roadway. The front car in which were all those injured followed the engine down the slope.

STATE CHAIRMAN DUNN APPEALS TO PRESIDENT

Is Said to Have Asked Him to Persuade Mayor Low to Run Again.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 23.—Following closely on Friday's visit of Gov. Odell to the president, Col. George W. Dunn, chairman of the New York Republican state committee, made a flying and secret trip to Sagamore Hill last night. Col. Dunn's visit was not announced. He came in on a late train, was driven to the house of the president and remained about an hour.

There will be speculation as to whether Gov. Odell did not say something to the president which necessitated Col. Dunn's visit. The object of the mysterious visit cannot be learned, but it is suspected that he came for two purposes—to ask the president to use his influence with Mayor Low to induce him to run for a second term and to give the president his views about the political situation in the state.

The president is not worrying about sentiment of the state, because he believes the farmers are in favor of his administration, but he likes to keep in touch with what the people are thinking about. This would be particularly serviceable when he comes to the preparation of his speech to be delivered September 7 at Syracuse.

Dutch Nobleman Dies at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Count von Apperon van der Vote died of heart disease at Ocean Beach last night. The count had earned his living here for several years as a nurse in hospitals. He came from one of the noblest families in Holland and had been a lieutenant in the Dutch navy.

SINKING BOAT CAUSED PANIC

Excursion Barge Annie Roberts Stranded at McKeesport.

LIFEBOATS SWAMPED

Members of Wolf Tone Social Had an Exciting Experience.

THE BOAT WILL BE RAISED

With 1,500 persons on board, the excursion barge Annie Roberts at 6 o'clock last night sank in the Monongahela river opposite Market street, McKeesport. Panic seized the passengers as a leak in the hull allowed the boat to settle in the stream, and only the cool heads of the officers prevented a disaster. In rescuing the passengers a skiff was overturned and several narrowly escaped drowning.

The boat had been chartered for the day by the Wolf Tone social, an Irish-American organization of Pittsburgh, and an excursion was made up the river to Moss grove, near Elizabeth. Late in the afternoon the trip back to Pittsburgh was made, and an entertainment was given on the upper decks. Every inch of room was taken. While the crowd gathered around the guard rails enjoying the acts of the performers the barge gave a lurch as the water poured into the hull.

In an instant the volume of merriment were turned to wild cries of despair. Capt. Jerry Gumbert noticed the craft listing, and turned to give an order to the crew of the towboat John F. Klein, which was pushing the barge. In confusion the frightened passengers rushed to the rail. Women with babies began crying and with their infants clutched tightly in their arms ran wildly about the women's cabin. Some in their terror abandoned their babies to chairs or on the floor and fled to the upper decks.

Wanted the Women Quieted.

Men who remained cool ran to the captain and offered their assistance. Capt. Gumbert told them to quiet the women, and with his crew attempted to stop the leak. Both were unsuccessful. The confusion among the passengers increased and the water commenced to pour into the hold in greater volume.

Orders were given at this juncture to run the barge to shore. Deeper the craft sank into the water as the towboat labored to bring the unwieldy bulk upon the beach. When 25 yards from the shore it was seen that a landing could not be made. The engines were stopped and the crew of the Klein sprang to aides in the work of rescue, which they knew must follow.

Inch by inch the boat sank into the stream and the wails of the crowds could be heard by those who had by this time assembled on the bank. It was known to the crew that the water could not be deep enough to submerge the boat, but the passengers would not believe this, and many became frantic with fear as they heard the water gurgling through the broken hull.

Men and many women climbed up on the rails and stood there calling for help. When the water began to smash over the gunwales there was a stampede to the upper decks, and those who were still below jammed the gangways in their flight. Just as the water reached the lower deck the boat grounded, and was at once cut loose from the towboat.

Boats Came Out from Shore.

A call was made for the boats on shore and soon every available skiff was manned by rescuing parties. Had all the

BUSINESS MEN READY TO HELP

Smallpox in Allegheny Is to Be Vigorously Stamped Out.

QUIET YESTERDAY

Vaccinators Rested Yesterday, But Will Get Very Busy This Morning.

MONEY TO BE FORTHCOMING

Charles street, Allegheny, wore a deserted appearance yesterday. Hardly anybody was on the street, except a few members of the families living in the houses in which there is no smallpox. About the only man who does not live in the district who paid it a visit yesterday was Councilman Joseph P. Hilldorfer, and he went in the line of his duty, being a member of the councilmanic committee on public safety.

A number of Allegheny business men have told Dr. Wilmer R. Batt, state quarantine officer at large, that they will do everything in their power to prevent the spread of smallpox. They realize that the suppression of the city administration, which may result in having the city quarantined, and in the issuance of an order to have the mails fumigated, has been extremely injurious to business, and they are willing to co-operate financially with the state quarantine officer to stamp out the disease. Contributions in cash have been promised and it is believed that before long funds will be at Dr. Batt's disposal, so that whatever the city administration may do, the state health authorities will have sufficient money to adopt and enforce the most stringent regulations for the eradication of smallpox.

Vaccinators Rested Yesterday.

The five physicians who have been for several days vaccinating residents of the infected Charles street district took a rest yesterday. Dr. D. E. Jamison, a city health officer, said that the doctors had worked so hard that they had hardly time to eat. Maj. James L. McLaughlin, superintendent of the bureau of health, believes that the epidemic will soon be got under control. Dr. Stanley M. Reinhart, the county quarantine officer, has been cooperating with Dr. Batt and has made it a point to confer with the business men of the city.

Dr. Batt yesterday made a tour of the infected smallpox district in Allegheny. He stated last night that so far as he could see or was able to learn there was absolutely no change in the conditions there. The Allegheny health authorities have not as yet adopted any means to prevent the spread of the disease, he said.

"Thirty-five smallpox cases were reported from the Charles street district last week, but none was reported today," said Dr. Jamison yesterday afternoon. "Some of the cases are extremely mild. The new wing to the municipal hospital will probably ready and we can then cope with the smallpox, even if it should assume an epidemic form. The health bureau has no money, but we are spending money anyhow and the city will have to provide for these expenditures later. We have vaccinated between 200 and 300 people in the district. As we vaccinate the people we fumigate the houses.

Systematic Work to Be Done.

"One street has been finished. Tomorrow we will go systematically to work in the district, vaccinating and disinfecting everything within a radius of four or five blocks. We believe that every case in the Charles street district originated from the Wade, the colored family that had a pa-

BOTH SPARRING FOR DELEGATES

Johnson and Zimmerman Claim Nomination for Governor.

DEPEND ON CONTESTS

Credential Committee Will Play Important Part in Ohio Convention.

SPRINGFIELD MAN CONFIDENT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Columbus, O., Aug. 23.—There is yet considerable uncertainty and speculation as to the probable outcome of the Democratic state convention which opens here next Tuesday. The gubernatorial nomination may yet be said to hang in the balance, although the friends of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland and John L. Zimmerman of Springfield each claim that their respective candidate has a majority of the votes in the convention. However, there is plenty of evidence that the fight will be close, as the result depends on the settlement of contests involving 185 delegates.

These contests are expected to prevent two congressional districts in Cincinnati and one at Cleveland from participating in the selection of members of the committees, so that the committee on credentials may have only 25 members voting on the first contest that is passed upon. With the custom of taking the contests up in alphabetical order, that of Cuyahoga county will come first, and it would likely be decided in favor of Johnson, so that there would be 13 voting on the contests from Gallia, Hamilton and other counties.

Bookwalter Withdraws.

A new twist was given the political situation late tonight by the withdrawal of John W. Bookwalter of Springfield as a candidate for United States senator. He had been decided upon by Mayor Johnson as the one to receive the honor of an indorsement by the state convention. The letter of withdrawal was given out after a conference here with Johnson.

The meaning of Bookwalter's action is difficult to understand. It is understood that Johnson, realizing he cannot get the nomination for governor, will use the convention to indorse him for senator, and he will thus be enabled to make the fight for the control of the legislature a personal one; rather that, or Bookwalter got out to help Zimmerman. The change in the situation is a great surprise to the politicians in view of the fact that Bookwalter had been announced as Johnson's candidate to oppose Senator Hanna.

Among those mentioned for honorable indorsement are Melville E. Ingalls, Charles W. Baker and Judson Harmon of Cincinnati; John H. Clarke and L. A. Russell, Cleveland; Allen W. Thurman, James Kilbourne and ex-Congressman John J. Lentz, Columbus; ex-Congressman John A. McMahon, Dayton; ex-Congressman J. A. Norton, Tiffin, and ex-Congressman A. J. Warner, Marietta.

Besides the six contested counties there are threats of throwing out the Erie, Clark and Defiance delegations for irregularities.

The preliminary contests extend to all parts of the organization of the convention. Johnson says he could not make the race on a Zimmerman platform, and Zimmerman says he could not run on a Johnson platform, so both are seeking a majority of the committee on resolutions.

Zimmerman Is Confident.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 23.—Special.—John L. Zimmerman says he has 400 delegates, 54 more than is necessary for the nomination for governor.

"It's going to be a close fight," said he tonight, "but I am very confident of being nominated. The selection of the committees will practically decide matters. I find that I am going to control the committee on credentials and resolutions. The six contests will determine to a great extent the result of the gubernatorial fight. These counties have contesting delegations: Hamilton, 42; Cuyahoga, 72; Ross, 9; Seneca, 10; Miami, 7; Gallia, 4.

Depends Upon Contest.

"As the fight is close, the settling of these contests will probably determine the result. It looks as if the people are going to favor me as to be their candidate. I figure on having 400 delegates, forgetting the five which I will get in Guernsey county Monday. The number of delegates I have received is fully up to my expectations."

Here is the way Mr. Zimmerman claims the delegates elected yesterday: Brown, 6; Fayette, 7; Jackson, 5; Lucas, Zimmerman 12, Johnson 5; Mahoning, Zimmerman 4, Johnson 6; Meigs, 5; Miami, 7; Morgan, 4; Summit, Zimmerman 7, Johnson 7; Ross, 9; Union, 4; Vinton, 3; Warren, 7. This gives Zimmerman 69 out of the 200 delegates elected yesterday.

Johnson gets Carroll, 6; Erie, 8; Hardin, 8; Portage, 6; Sandusky, 8; Van Wert, 6; Jefferson, 7, making Johnson's delegates 42, secured yesterday, with a contesting delegation of 72 in Cuyahoga, Johnson's home county.

The Trouble in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23.—It is here the Johnson and Zimmerman factions are tonight claiming victory in the Democratic state convention. It seems certain that neither can win on the face of the returns without a resort to sharp practice of some sort. In fact, it appears that the contest for governor will be decided by the control of the committee on credentials.

The contests instituted in Cincinnati by the Johnson people and in this city by anti-Johnson forces, will do not at least the delegates on the preliminary organization. Three Republican Clerks will be eliminated from the committee on credentials. They will be the First, Second and Twenty-fifth. That will leave only 24 districts entitled to members on the committee, who will have the right to vote upon contests.

Charles F. Dalton, the Johnson manager, insists that they have control of a majority of the district delegations, and will therefore have control of the committee on credentials, which will unseat more than enough anti-Johnson delegates to insure the nomination of the Cleveland mayor. At present the contest does not seem to be one which the sentiment of the party is to rule, but rather one with which the will of Johnson is to be carried out at all hazards.

Among the Democrats from this city who will go to Columbus to oppose Johnson, and who will demand seats in the convention, are many of the former leaders of the party here, but men who have not affiliated with Johnson. They protest against yesterday's county convention, which was run entirely by Johnson. Not only was the ticket nominated exactly as he had made it up the night before, everything being done by acclamation, but the delegates to the state convention were dictated by him.

Mayor Johnson denied himself to representatives of the press today, permitting Salen, who took charge of his campaign for the governorship after he had announced that he did not want the nomination, but would take it if it were tendered to him, do all the talking. It is certain that the mayor is surprised by the opposition to his nomination which has developed, and he is worried by the contesting delegation to be sent from here. To break the force of the movement Salen today gave out a statement in which he declared that all the 73 Democrats on that delegation were Republicans, and that they had been hired by Senator Hanna and Col. Myron T. Herrick, the Republican candidate for governor, to go to Columbus to oppose Johnson.

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—In answer to the question as to the probable outcome of the fight for the nomination for governor, Democratic State Chairman William J. Prey spoke as follows:

"I firmly believe that Zimmerman will secure the nomination. Hancock county is certainly for Zimmerman, to a man, in spite of the assertions to the contrary. All the uninstructed delegates, I think, will be for Zimmerman, because if they were not they would have been positively instructed otherwise. I consider Johnson today the strongest man in the Democratic party in Ohio, but am supporting Zimmerman purely from personal reasons. We are close friends."

SINKING BOAT CAUSES PANIC

passengers remained cool there would have been no unpleasant sequel to the mishap, but some still refused to be quieted. When the life boats surrounded the sunken barge there was another wild scramble among the excited ones, all making a mad rush down the gangways to reach the lower decks.

When the first boats came alongside they were nearly swamped by the excited passengers who climbed aboard. One of the skiffs was pulled from shore by George Butler of McKeesport, and when he reached the Annie Roberts, Mrs. Ella Striner of Selina street, Oakland, called to him to catch her baby, which she tossed overboard.

Butler caught the child and placed it in the bottom of the skiff. Seizing the oars he rowed nearer, and Mrs. Striner and her two other children, both under 10 years of age, stepped into the boat. Butler then pulled back toward the shore, when a man who had been standing on the rail impatiently calling for help, jumped over the rail into the skiff. The small craft capsized, and Mrs. Striner, her children and all the occupants were thrown into the water.

Butler Saved the Whole Four.

Butler is a good swimmer and he promptly saved the baby and swam to the Annie Roberts and deposited it on the deck. He then swam around and picked up Mrs. Striner and her children, sustaining them and keeping their heads above water until they were rescued by other skiffs. Mrs. Striner was taken to the residence of Andrew Ferguson. She was suffering from the shock, but later was able to be taken to her home. The man who was responsible for the accident was left to scramble back into the stranded barge.

Half an hour was required to transport the passengers to the shore. Much of the picnic paraphernalia was abandoned. The excursionists returned to Pittsburgh on trolley cars. John F. Klein said last night that the barge had been pumped out and would soon be brought to the local wharf.

telegraphic communication at several points between Adrianople and Kirk-Kilise, 35 miles to the northeast, and have burned and pillaged several Greek and Mussulman villages, including Kavakli and Kizili, southwest of Kirk-Kilise. Troops have been dispatched to the environs of Adrianople.

Italian Consul Insulted.

Two sailing vessels crowded with Mussulman refugees from villages on the Black sea coast have arrived at Kavak, at the entrance to the Bosphorus. At Monastir a Mussulman called the Italian consul a "giaour." A strong feeling prevails among the Mussulmans at Salonica and Monastir on account of the execution of M. Rostkowski's murderers. The remains of the murdered consul were shipped at Salonica yesterday with great pomp on board the Russian embassy guardship Teretz. The Turkish civil and military authorities attended the ceremony. The Teretz sailed for Odessa.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Sympathizers with Macedonia held a meeting at Hull house today and framed resolutions denunciatory of the sultan's government, which they will send to President Roosevelt. The memorial to the president asks that a note be sent from the United States to all of the European powers expressing indignation and horror at the recent events in Macedonia and urging the powers to interfere for the sake of humanity.

INSISTS IT IS A MISTAKE.

Allegheny Minister Goes to the Front for an Alleged Highwayman.

When Harry McCarroll was arraigned before Alderman E. C. Negley at No. 4 police station yesterday, charged with attempting to snatch a chatelaine bag from Miss Helen McCarthy, on Saturday, a minister from Allegheny, who refused to give his name, appeared in his behalf and stated that he knew him to be an honest, hard-working, church-going man, with a family.

McCarroll insists that there is a grievous mistake and that he is not the man wanted, although Miss McCarthy identified him as her assailant. The police are puzzled over the affair. McCarroll was held to await further investigations.

NEW DIVISION OF O. R. C.

Seventy-Four Members Were Initiated at Pitcairn Last Night.

A new division of the Order of Railway Conductors was organized in Reed's hall, Pitcairn, last night. About 75 members were initiated. This division will be No. 488. A ladies' auxiliary was organized at the same time, and they served a banquet after the ceremonies.

Special cars containing the members of the order from Altoona and other points in Western Pennsylvania arrived on train No. 3. Chief Organizer W. J. Maxwell of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was in charge of the ceremonies. The officers elected are: Chief conductor, D. St. Myer; assistant chief conductor, H. Lockhardt; secretary and treasurer, Grant Tenser.

Platt Declares for Low.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Senator Thomas C. Platt pledged himself in the most unequivocal manner today at the Oriental hotel to the renomination of Mayor Low. He declared that the only chance for the nomination of an independent Democrat for mayor lay in the refusal of Mayor Low to accept a renomination.

TRIAL HEATS FOR CUP CHALLENGERS

Suggestion That Other Countries Compete for Honor of Racing With Cup Defender.

GIVES CHANCE TO ALL COMERS

New York Yachtsmen Discuss the Advisability of Making Some Such Arrangement—Would Arouse Interest in Yachting—Opinion of English Expert.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Yachtsmen are talking about a somewhat novel suggestion which has been made in connection with the struggle for the America's cup. No New York yachtsmen will admit there is any question of the superiority of the Reliance in the present series, though there are some of the visiting experts who profess to see a chance yet for Sir Thomas Lipton to lift the cup. The suggestion alluded to is that there shall next year be an international race, or series of races, open to all nations which desire to enter into a contest for the America's cup, with the understanding that the winner is to challenge the United States for the cup.

In speaking of the matter tonight a member of the New York Yacht club said: "The idea certainly has the merit of novelty, and I do not see why it is not only practicable, but advisable. It seems to be demonstrated that England cannot lift the cup. Perhaps Germany, France, Russia, Japan, Italy or some of the other maritime nations think they can. If they do I see no reason why they should not do like they do in other sports, have trial heats and select the boat which is to go against the champion.

"My own judgment is that it will be a long time before a boat is built, either here or elsewhere, that will beat Reliance. Still, the cup is here, and we would be glad for anybody who thinks Reliance or another American boat can be beaten is welcome to come after it."

An English yachtsman remarked: "Shamrock III. is not out of the running yet. If she is beaten you may depend on it we will have another over here before long. If other nations wish to try for the cup it would rest with the New York Yacht club to decide which of the challengers would be accepted. If there are two or more of them and the New Yorkers should suggest a trying-out, taking on the best boat, I see no reason why the suggestion is not a good one. One thing is certain, interest in yachting is growing in continental Europe, largely on account of these races. I do not believe, however, that there is any other country which would stand any show at all either in building or sailing racing yachts with the United States and England. You will recall that the kaiser, who is intensely German, has an American built yacht, with an English skipper. If he could have found what he wanted in Germany he would have had neither.

"I am inclined, therefore, to believe that for the present at least England will be the only challenger for the cup."

COMBES DETERMINED TO GO TO THE LIMIT

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Important speeches were made yesterday by two members of the government. Premier Combes, speaking at a banquet at Saintes to celebrate the inauguration of a tramway to the little town of St. Porchaire, in the department of Charente Infeura, which he represents in the senate, affirmed his intention of carrying the anti-clerical war to the bitter end and denounced the reactionaries who now pretended to wave the banner of liberty. He spoke of the importance of increasing the means of intercommunication as aiding the spead of republican principles, and then, discussing the distilling industry, he promised to obtain from the finance minister certain fiscal concessions which would afford relief to the principal industry of the department.

The second speech was made by M. Pelletan, minister of marine, at Cherbourg, where he attended the launching of the armored cruiser Jules Perry. He declared that the chiefs of the navy must submit to the republican regime. He did not want the naval officers to be taught by Dominican priests that their swords were at the service of clericalism, against the republic. Both ministers were applauded.

HAD PRESENCE OF MIND.

Only for the prompt action of his two companions, John McGrath, aged 12 years, would have drowned yesterday afternoon. The three boys were poling a skiff in Chartiers creek and McGrath was handling the pole from the stern. The pole stuck and the boy in trying to release it, lost his balance.

William Grefnes, 11 years old, jumped out of the boat, although none of the party could swim, and holding the stern railing with both hands, paddled to where the drowning boy was going down. The other boy, Harold Seaver, 9 years old, pulled him in. The boy was taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin McGrath, in Robinson township, where a physician worked on him an hour before he fully recovered.

Sick Man Charges Robbery.

Peter Demas of McDonald, John Canontos of No. 521 Wylie avenue, and Louis Panazakos of No. 1222 Wylie avenue, were arrested last night at the Diamond market as suspicious characters. Panazakos claimed the other two men had robbed him of $30. At the Central police station it was found that Panazakos was sick and he was sent to the Homeopathic hospital. He has symptoms of typhoid fever.

tient treated by a faith curist without the knowledge of the bureau of health. The disease spread from that center."

"Four doctors have reported that they have vaccinated 800 persons," said Maj. McLaughlin, "and I have not yet heard from the fifth physician. We are getting the smallpox under control and will soon have things in good shape. While there is no money in the health fund, the city will provide what is necessary. An ordinance has been introduced by Councilman Hilldorfer transferring $15,000 from another fund to the health fund. That will tide us over for a while."

"The ordinance transferring the $15,000 Maj. McLaughlin speaks of is now in the hands of the finance committee," said Mr. Hilldorfer. "I hope that as soon as the committee has acted upon it a special meeting of the councils will be called to pass the measure. I had intended to go away next Saturday for three weeks, but I will stay to do whatever councilmen may be called on to do to prevent the spread of smallpox. I was down in the district for two hours today and found everything in good shape. The quarantine guards were alert and in evidence. While there possibly ought to be more guards, yet the eight employed can watch the infected houses, for all but three of the cases in the district are close together and the guards can observe anybody trying to go in or out of the quarantined dwellings."

Councilman Hilldorfer Talks.

"There is no doubt that we will get the money to fight the disease, and I know that every councilman will vote for any measure needed to raise the necessary funds. I believe, too, that in their capacity as citizens the councilmen will do more than their duty. I myself am willing to employ a quarantine guard at my own expense. Let the health bureau put any man on guard and notify me and I will pay his wages. I think nearly every other councilman is willing to do the same."

A stroller through the infected district notices a queer smell and is surprised to learn that nearly everybody living there carries a bag of assafoetida tied around his or her neck. The residents are firmly convinced that this will ward off the disease. As long as they consent to be vaccinated the health bureau officers do not care how many bad smelling amulets are in use, although they pronounce the use of the drug referred to in a bag tied about the neck as of no virtue.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE FOUND IN PITTSBURGH

People Permitted to Congregate in a Penn Avenue Saloon Where Smallpox Prevails.

Laxity of strict quarantine in cases of smallpox on the part of the Pittsburgh bureau of health was made apparent at No. 2746 Penn avenue, last night. Early yesterday morning, Mrs. Barbara Escherich, aged 57 years, who conducted a hotel and saloon at that address, died of the disease after an illness of a week. As the case had been an acute one, and as a niece of the deceased, Miss Anna Spicker, who had nursed her aunt, was stricken, and is at present lying in the bed that was occupied by Mrs. Escherich, the funeral was ordered to take place at once. Accordingly the interment took place yesterday afternoon in Allegheny cemetery.

Last night no sign could be seen on the house and visitors were allowed to enter at will. One of the callers last night when told of the existence of smallpox and of the death from the disease that had just occurred in the house, was told by a "guard" in the room not to be alarmed, as the upstairs where the patient was laying was strictly quarantined. The visitor was seeking information that the patient along was in possession of, and the guard volunteered to go up and ask the patient and bring down the answer. The guard's services were not accepted.

During the illness of Mrs. Escherich the saloon on the ground floor of the building has been kept open, and at no time has any restriction been placed upon persons wishing to enter the house.

Four men quarantined in the barber shop of A. F. Carroll, No. 2988 Center avenue, who chanced to be in the place on Friday when a negro, who had escaped from a quarantined house was overhauled in Carroll's shop, were released at midnight on Saturday. The shop is still being quarantined, and although the door is locked, a guard is kept stationed on the outside.

The following cases of smallpox were reported yesterday by the Pittsburgh bureau of health: Charles E. Sieglich, 19 years old, of No. 2037 Wylie avenue; William H. Jones, colored, 38 years old, who lives in the rear of No. 50 Vera street; Katie Lapidi, 19 years old, of No. 2018 Fifth avenue; Helen Moore, colored, 18 years old, of No. 1612 Beltler street. The last named is said to be the fourteenth case originating with the Robinson family of No. 5006 Beltler street, which is the house from which the quarantined negro caught in Carroll's barber shop escaped.

READY FOR MANEUVERS.

PORTLAND, ME., Aug. 23.—Gen. Chaffee, who is to be the commander for the army in the war maneuvers at this port this week, arrived here today. With him were Gen. Barry, Capt. Harper and Capt. Hamilton.

"How busy the army will be for the next few days will, of course, depend on the navy," said Gen. Chaffee. "The troops will be over this vicinity—that will be their part in the affair. Neither the army nor the navy is playing for victories in this game. On the contrary, we are trying to eliminate any idea that there may be a contest. It is a test and practice of material more than anything else."

Wily Policeman Caught Crap Shooters.

By letting himself through a coal chute Lieut. Robert Emmet of No. 4 police station, broke up a crap game that was in progress at No. 48 Beeler street at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and arrested the proprietor, George Green, colored, and six visitors.

Workmen from the Allegheny bureau of highways and sewers ordered to assist in bringing about a more sanitary condition of affairs by cleaning out the sewers in the smallpox district.

IMPORTED CLERKS SERVE ICE CREAM

New Plan to Evade the Watchfulness of Wilkinsburg's Committee of 12.

DRUGGIST'S WIFE AS A CLERK

Man and Wife Being One in the Eyes of the Law, Mrs. C. H. Covell Goes Behind Counter—Roaring Sunday Selling Business.

About 60 patrons of W. L. Smith's drug store in Wilkinsburg, seated at about 20 tables eating ice cream, were surprised just before midnight by seeing two well-dressed negroes and four equally well-dressed young white men, emerge from the room back of the store and hurriedly leave by the front entrance.

"Why, they're the men who waited on us," was the remark heard from several of the tables.

They were the negro waiters and white soda fountain clerks who had done a rushing business all day long. Before two hours had passed they were 75 miles away in their homes in Youngstown, O. They were entire strangers in the borough of Wilkinsburg, and if the committee of 12 intended to prosecute them for selling soda water on Sunday it will not find them this morning.

Such is the latest wrinkle introduced in the Sunday selling feature of Wilkinsburg life. The blue laws provide that everyone concerned in selling the necessaries of life can be fined, and therefore Smith imported his clerks and waiters from Youngstown and saw that they were out of Wilkinsburg before a warrant could be served on them. Smith himself is, in his opinion, the only one who can be fined, and after the enormous business he did yesterday there will be much profit left after he has paid his own fine and the wages and traveling expenses of his imported clerks. Next Sunday he will have another batch of strangers serving ice cream and soda water, and he will keep up that policy indefinitely. The foreign clerks receive $5, their railway fares both ways and their meals, so that the experience is quite a profitable picnic for them.

C. H. Covell, the only other druggist who was selling in Wilkinsburg yesterday, in defiance of the crusaders, had also made arrangements to have clerks from Youngstown, but somehow his men missed connections, and when the day grew hot, and thirsty patrons poured into the store, Mr. Covell found that he could not attend single handed to their wants. To have hired clerks known to the spotters employed by the committee of 12 would have made him liable to a fine of $25 for each clerk.

Just then a lawyer came in to have a drink. He saw that Covell had more than he could attend to and when the druggist explained his predicament the lawyer said:

"In the eyes of the law man and wife are one. If Mrs. Covell serves soda water no justice of the peace can fine both of you, so both of you can get busy and it will cost only $25."

Mrs. Covell happened to step into the store. She heard the lawyer and despite her husband's remonstrances, she stepped behind the counter and proved herself a most efficient clerk. The novelty of seeing a handsome woman serving soda water and dishing out ice cream brought customers on the run, so that even if the young lawyer's conception of the law should turn out to be erroneous, the day's receipts are sufficient to pay two fines and leave something over for wear and tear on the glasses.

But the roaring business was done at Smith's. His 20 tables were crowded by ever-changing patrons all day long. The crusade has been a great advertisement and Smith and Covell have done more business this cool summer than they did last summer, which was a scorching hot one. The other druggists in the borough did not open their stores, which are not in localities the patronage of which would justify them in keeping open and paying a $25 fine.

The committee of five, which is the druggists themselves, will not make informations this time before a friendly justice of the peace. Since Attorney General Hampton L. Carson has decided that justices have no right to remit fines and Justice J. J. Walker cannot, therefore, favor the druggists any longer by such remissions, the work of the prosecution will be left to the committee of 12. That committee has announced that it will adopt other tactics today and will sue the stockholders of the company operating Smith's store. They assert that under the law the property runs to the ground of the Forbes school. The large concrete walls, which are 40 feet in some places, had been finished, ready to be turned over to the contractors for the superstructure. The western wall was about six feet thick, and when it fell it took part of the school yard with it.

The watchman of the place, John Dominic, an Italian, had a narrow escape from being crushed to death. He was seated at the bottom of the wall when he heard a crumbling noise. He immediately ran, and a second afterward the large wall with its tons of concrete, crashed down. The work was several months behind contract time and will now be delayed the more. The work is being done by the Clark Brothers Co., contractors.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED IN THE RAFFERTY CASE

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Justice Williams yesterday sustained portions of the demurrer to the complaint of the case of Deborah M. Rafferty, daughter-in-law of Gilbert T. Rafferty, the Pittsburg coke millionaire, against John Rafferty Medlar, said to be a New York millionaire. Action was brought to recover $37,000 for alienation of her husband's affections and causing him to procure separation or divorce. She alleges Medlar entered into a conspiracy with Gilbert T. Rafferty to separate her and her husband, George Rafferty. An amended complaint is allowed to be served.

VERDICT BLAMED ON MME HUMBERT

Paris Takes Great Interest in Outcome of Greatest Swindling Episode in the History of Paris—Prisoners Will Appeal to the Court of Cassation.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, Aug. 23. — The result of the Humbert trial has caused a general feeling of relief, many, especially among the lower classes, having feared till the last that occult influences would succeed in procuring a verdict of acquittal. The interest in interest taken in the trial is shown by the fact that the presses of the newspapers could not reel off special editions fast enough. The papers were immediately snapped up and some reached the cutting quarters of Paris until quite late in the evening, when they were eagerly bought at three and five times their regular price.

In spite of her defiant attitude when receiving sentence, Madame Therese Humbert broke down last night on her arrival in the Conciergerie prison and had a long crying spell. The men of the party, though depressed, bore up better.

Maitre Labori, her counsel, visited Mme. Humbert this morning and found her still prostrated, but she obstinately maintained her innocence and denounced the sentence as iniquitous. She and her husband will appeal to the court of cassation on the ground of technical irregularities. If successful in their appeal they will be retried before another assize court, possibly at Versailles.

Emile and Romain Daurignac will not appeal, as owing to the time they have spent in prison awaiting trial, the period of release on a ticket of leave will arrive before a rehearing could possibly take place. The defending counsel are greatly disappointed at the result of the trial. Maitre Labori refused to be interviewed, but his colleague, Maitre Chenet, expressed his opinion that but for the illtimed and futile revelations of Madame Humbert a general acquittal would have been possible. Several members of the jury who have given interviews are unanimous in saying that the person who did most to secure the conviction of the prisoners was Madame Therese herself, because her rambling statements irritated the jurymen. The foreman of the jury declares there was no difference of opinion concerning the guilt of Madame Therese, but the jury's decision in the case of the two brothers Daurignac was the result of much discussion. Their condemnation was based solely on their complicity in the swindling operations in connection with the Ronte Vlagere insurance concern.

The aged mother of Frederic Humbert and widow of Senator Humbert, whose name has been attached in connection with the Crawford swindle, and with whom Madame Humbert's daughter Eve and her sister, Marie Daurignac, are staying, received the news of condemnation from a reporter. She bore up bravely, and indignantly denounced the injustice of the verdict, declaring that an appeal would be made to the court of cassation. She and Eve Humbert were permitted to see the prisoners this afternoon. Madame Lucien Humbert, a sister of Madame Therese, likewise maintains a firm belief in the latter's innocence, and declares that her father used to talk of Regnier to her mother.

THICK CONCRETE WALL CAME CRASHING DOWN

Work on New Addition to the Mercy Hospital Has Received a Setback.

The western wall of the excavation for the new addition to the Mercy hospital, at Forbes and Fifth streets, fell down with a crash early yesterday morning and nearly killed an Italian night watchman who was seated nearby. The wall fell without warning, and took with it a large portion of the yard of the Forbes street sub-district school. Work on the addition will be delayed for some time, as the wall will have to be entirely rebuilt.

The new building will cover a piece of ground bounded by Forbes, Fifth and Locust streets. The western wall has of the property runs to the ground of the Forbes school. The large concrete walls, which are 40 feet in some places, had been finished, ready to be turned over to the contractors for the superstructure. The western wall was about six feet thick, and when it fell it took part of the school yard with it.

The watchman of the place, John Dominic, an Italian, had a narrow escape from being crushed to death. He was seated at the bottom of the wall when he heard a crumbling noise. CHILD'S BURNS CAUSED DEATH

Four-Year-Old Son of Dr. James W. McHugh Set Fire to His Night Dress.

PITCAIRN WOMAN'S SUICIDE

Mrs. James Hamilton Took Carbolic Acid. Death Resulting—One Railroad Victim—Two Floaters Were Found in the Rivers.

Dr. James W. McHugh of No. 4908 Second avenue was startled by loud screaming in one of the rooms in the second story of his house at about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. He rushed upstairs and found his little son Paul wrapped in flames. The fire was immediately extinguished and Dr. R. W. Ferry, who was called to attend the child, found that the sufferer was badly burned.

Little could be done for the child, and he died at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The coroner's office was at once notified, and an investigation will be made today.

The little boy was but 4 years of age, and his parents had left him sleeping just before the accident occurred. It is thought he arose from his bed while alone and struck a match, setting fire to his night dress.

Mrs. Etta Annie Hamilton, 35 years old, wife of James Hamilton, a Pennsylvania railroad engineer living in S. street, Pitcairn, committed suicide at 6:30 yesterday morning by swallowing a large quantity of carbolic acid. No cause is assigned for the act. She arose at 6 yesterday morning and prepared breakfast as usual. When her husband came down stairs at 7 he found her lying on the floor of the kitchen in a dying condition with an empty bottle by her side. He summoned Dr. James Montgomery, but before the physician arrived the woman expired. Five children survive.

James Casey, aged 35, of Braddock, was killed on the Pennsylvania railroad near Sommerhill, close to Johnstown, early yesterday morning. Both legs were cut off, his head crushed and his body bruised. Casey leaves five children in Braddock. His wife having died two months ago.

The body of an unknown white man was found floating in the Allegheny river at Chesrick at 7 o'clock last night. The case is being investigated by the coroner.

Louis M. Reed, aged 19, of Blairsville, Pa., a brakeman, who was injured on the West Penn railroad on Saturday by being crushed between two cars, died at the West Penn hospital yesterday.

The body of Edward Davis, a negro, aged 18 years, of No. 1202 Wylie avenue, was found floating in the Monongahela river at the foot of Market street at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Davis fell into the river on Friday night while about to step aboard the Mayflower. He was formerly a bell boy at a hotel in Somerset, Pa.

INTRUDER MORTALLY SHOT.

Benjamin Schwartz Fired at Michael Hornick, Who Broke Into Schwartz's House.

Michael Hornick was shot and mortally wounded last night by Benjamin Schwartz, a well-known McKeesport merchant. Hornick was taken to the Central police station and then to the hospital, where at midnight he was dying. He lives in Mulberry alley. Schwartz lives in Fourth avenue.

At 10:30 p. m. Schwartz was sitting in his library reading. Hearing a noise in the rear of the house he picked up a 32-caliber revolver and went back to investigate. As he entered the kitchen the outer door of that room swung open and a man entered. Schwartz shouted "Who's there?" and receiving no reply, fired once. The man dropped and Schwartz called the police.

The man was identified as Hornick, a well-known Jew. The bullet entered under the heart. Schwartz spent the night in the police station, the police placing the charge of being a suspicious person against his name. Nobody has been able to tell Hornick's object in going into the house.

WEALTHY MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOVEL AT WHEELING

WHEELING, W. VA., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Thomas Newman, an eccentric old man, was found dead in his room tonight. The room was a veritable hovel. He went into his room this morning and tonight the door was battered down by neighbors. About $100, a bank account of $2,000 and other valuables were found, together with deeds to a large amount of city property. There was no evidence of foul play.

CITIZENS DODGE THE TAX ISSUE

Leaders Now Declare Franchise Measure in Councils to Be Illegal.

THE MAYOR HAS NEW SCHEME

He Proposes to Increase Car Tax of Traction Companies—Ordinance Is to Be Changed to Render It Practically Harmless.

The city administration is preparing to dodge the franchise tax question, just as it evaded the delinquent tax office issue. The Citizens party leaders have already receded from their declarations in favor of levying a tax on the gross receipts of public service corporations, and are scheming to give this project its death blow.

Mayor Hays and his colleagues, who were among the most ardent advocates of a franchise tax during the last campaign, are said by persons in their confidence to have had a change of heart since the last election, and to have acquired the opinion that it would be unconstitutional to levy a tax upon the receipts of a corporation holding a municipal franchise.

A member of the finance committee of select council, which has been conferring with Mayor Hays and Solicitor W. B. Rodgers, in reference to the franchise ordinance now pending in the committee, stated yesterday that the city executive had been advised and was now of the opinion that it would be unconstitutional to tax public service corporations, but that the Citizens party leaders wanted the ordinance passed this fall in order to obtain votes. It is the purpose, he said, to first put the measure in such shape as to render it practically harmless to the street car companies and other corporations.

According to this authority the ordinance is to be amended so that it will not become effective in time for a test in courts until after the next two elections and it can then be withdrawn, out of consideration for the street car monopoly, in the event that the latter uses its influence in behalf of the Citizens party ticket in the elections this fall and next February.

It is stated that the scheme is to amend the ordinance so as to delay the collection of taxes on public service corporations until July, 1904. The ordinance as passed by common council, some months ago, provides that the street car, water, telephone, electric light, and steam heating companies shall pay their taxes into the city treasury on or before July 1, 1903, but the ordinance was delayed past that date and it is now proposed to delay it a year longer.

Mayor Hays is said to have expressed the opinion that while the ordinance was illegal, the corporations could be reached in another manner. He is said to have been advised by the city solicitor that while the city may not have the right to levy a tax upon the gross receipts of a company in the guise of a license tax, that the city has the power, in the case of the street car companies, to increase the license tax they pay upon their cars. About $60 a year is paid annually, or is supposed to be paid, upon each street car that runs on the public highways of the city and it is Mayor Hays' opinion that a tax of $300 on each car would not be excessive.

The inequality of the license tax collected from the street car companies and from the owners of private vehicles is shown by the fact that the city revenues from vehicles amounted last year to about $57,000, while the total revenues from street car licenses amounted to only about $17,000, or less than one-third of the amount of the receipts from vehicle licenses.

Upon this basis, if the tax on street cars were increased five-fold the revenues from this source would be something like $85,000 a year, instead of $17,000. Even this is considered by the franchise advocates as much less than what the street car monopoly should pay for its grants.

The franchise ordinance is now in the hands of City Solicitor Rodgers. It was referred to the city solicitor and a subcommittee of the finance committee of the upper branch some time ago. Mr. Rodgers' advice was sought upon the matter, but his views have not been conveyed beyond the members of the subcommittee and Mayor Hays.

WRECK AT OAKMONT.

Axle Broke on Car—Loss Several Thousand Dollars—Trains Delayed.

A freight wreck occurred on the Allegheny Valley railroad at Oakmont, at 4:30 yesterday morning. A heavily loaded southbound train was going at a high rate of speed when an axle on a car broke. Immediately the automatic brakes were put on and 20 cars were piled up. One car loaded with furniture was smashed and the contents were destroyed. Melons were scattered from another car all over the street and railroad. None of the crew was hurt. A wrecking engine was sent from Verona and by 5:30 last evening the tracks were cleared.

All through trains were sent by the West Penn division. Local trains transferred their passengers around the wreck. The loss is several thousand dollars.

SLATE MAKERS COMING HOME

Party from Lakewood Will Be in This Morning With a Fusion Shrievalty Nominee.

CLARK LEAVES THE SEASHORE

Is Expecting to Have a Candidate for Poor Director Ready for Unveiling. 'Squire Braun Undecided About His Candidacy.

Thomas S. Bigelow, Mayor W. P. Hays and Murry A. Verner are due from Lakewood, N. Y., this morning. They spent yesterday there and are supposed to have selected a fusion candidate for sheriff. The man will probably be uncovered today.

From Atlantic City last night word was received that Commissioner James A. Clark had started for home. W. J. Brennen, who has been in Saratoga, is also expected today. They have a man to slate for director of the poor and may allow the public to know this evening who they have selected.

Before Bigelow left town he told his associates that it was his desire to get the fusion ticket in shape at tomorrow afternoon's joint conference. He wants to get the candidates started into the country districts. The news from the rural portion of the county is not at all to his liking.

Goehring Told to Hustle.

Harry L. Goehring, the Bigelow candidate for district attorney, has been informed that he is to campaign with the candidate for sheriff. Bigelow wants them to start on a tour of the county just as soon as possible. They will be ordered to hustle day and night until election day. Because of the great amount of work which has to be done, Bigelow thinks that a young man must be chosen for sheriff. Mayor Hays says that he does not have to be popular, but must be a hustler.

The Allegheny situation is extremely discouraging to the Bigelow machine. The continual breaking of pledges by the Citizens officials over there has broken the strength of the party. In addition to this Mayor James G. Wyman was not well pleased when he was forced to turn in for Goehring. The mayor means that the candidate for district attorney is not strong in his own city and appreciates the difficulty which will be experienced in endeavoring to get votes for him. Wyman's popularity has also faded considerably. The workers blame him with not keeping promises and many of them are returning to the Republican camp.

Braun is Undecided.

Squire E. C. Braun of Allegheny, who has been mentioned quite often as a Republican candidate for sheriff, is undecided about his course. He said last night that if he decided to go into the contest he would certainly be able to control the convention and secure the nomination. He realizes that there is a strong sentiment in favor of nominating an old soldier for the office. If a veteran can be found who is generally acceptable to the party Squire Braun will not stand in the way of the man's nomination. Effort is now being made by the North Side leaders to find such a man and a general conference may be held today.

Before the end of this week a number of Republicans who have been considering the advisability of seeking nominations for district attorney and sheriff will have decided what they will do. James M. Shields, who is mentioned as a possible candidate for district attorney, will return to the city and announce whether he will go into the primaries.

PEDAGOGUES ARE COMING.

Fifty-Third Annual Session of County Institute Will Open Today.

Pittsburgh will be thronged today by pedagogues who will come to the city to attend the opening of the 53d annual session of the Allegheny County Teachers institute, which will be held in the Pittsburgh Carnegie Music hall during the first five days of the week. The morning session will be devoted to the enrollment of the teachers. The attendance will exceed 500.

While the secretaries are arranging the roll books the majority of the members of the big delegation will spend the time in renewing old friendships. The institute's meetings are always characterized by a reunion of the county's most prominent educators, and while the noon hour is spent around luncheon baskets in Schenley park, the gathering resolves itself into an informal experience meeting.

At the afternoon session Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston will speak on "Nineteenth Century Education," and Dr. W. W. Black of Chicago will deliver a lecture entitled "The Purpose of the School." Dr. W. N. Ferris of Big Rapids, Mich., will discuss the duty of teachers in the study of mental arithmetic. The music will be furnished by the County Treble chorus under the direction of Prof. A. L. Pillmore.

POLICEMAN BEAT UP A STREET CAR CONDUCTOR

Blue-Coat Did Not Want to Pay Fare and Insisted on Sleeping on a Car With a Woman's Arm as a Pillow.

Because a street car conductor compelled him to pay his fare and later refused to allow him to sleep on the car, using a woman's arm as a pillow, John McNeil, a policeman from No. 1 station, assaulted Conductor Thomas H. Robinson at the terminal of the Lincoln avenue line at 5:30 last evening. Robinson was badly bruised about the head and had his nose cut open by being pushed through a glass window. He was compelled to give up his car and was taken to his home, No. 5019 Broad street. When seen last night, Robinson said:

"McNeil got on my car, No. 1784, in front of the safety building, and took the front seat. I asked him for his fare and he showed me his badge, saying 'I am a policeman and don't pay car fare.' I insisted that he pay, as he was in citizen's clothes. After a remonstrance he paid me. When we reached Oakland two women got aboard and sat beside McNeil, who had gone to sleep. Presently he began to bob to and fro, and finally, leaning his head against the arm of one of the women, began to snore.

"The woman called me, and I tapped the policeman on the shoulder and asked him to keep awake and not lean on them. He jumped up from his seat and struck me a blow on the breast, at the same time heaping curses upon me. I told him to act gentlemanly or I would have to put him off the car. When we reached Craig street I told Car Inspector King about the trouble and he put McNeil off.

"Jumping on the next car, McNeil followed me to the end of the line, and jumping on my car began to punch me. He is much heavier and larger than I, and I could do nothing against him. Finally he struck me on the jaw, sending my head through a window. He then ran off."

A report of the affair was received at No. 6 police station last night about 6 o'clock, but no arrests were made. When Inspector Boyle of No. 6 station was seen last night he said that he had seen the report, but did not know who sent it in, and "guessed there was nothing in it."

CHEATING THE BIG CORPORATIONS

Bridge and Railroad Companies Losing by Illegal Traffic in Bridge Tickets.

TEAMSTERS ARE IMPLICATED

Transportation Concerns Give Free Passage Over River to Drivers Taking Freight to Stations and the Trip Slips Are Being Sold at Reduced Rates.

Hundreds of dollars are being lost monthly by the bridge companies whose structures cross the Allegheny river, the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and by the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad through a systematic and illegal sale of bridge tickets by teamsters. To encourage freight business to Allegheny the two railroads, which both have freight stations on the North Side, each month purchase thousands of tickets which are freely distributed among a few trusted drivers. These drivers are supposed to give them sparingly to teamsters of large firms and independent express companies.

Investigation by the railroads has proved that the tickets, which are worth 10 cents for a two-horse team, are being sold in bunches of 22 at from four to five cents each, and that one-horse team tickets are being disposed of at a corresponding reduction. Many drivers know where to purchase these tickets, and instead of getting them from the bridge agents, they buy them at the cut-rate stands.

The Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railroad purchased $300 worth of team tickets for use across the Sixth street bridge last month. The tickets bought of that company are good on the Seventh and Ninth street bridges also. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad during the same month bought $200 worth. All of these tickets were distributed among the drivers who patronized the two roads at the Allegheny stations.

The bridge companies are the chief losers, and it is understood that they will co-operate with the railroad company in tracing the illegal sale of their tickets. It has been suggested that the next bunch of tickets purchased by the railroads be marked and that the drivers presenting them be compelled to give an account. The railroads, however, would probably lose business if a general surveillance were kept on the drivers, and this method probably will not be tried.

The railroad companies give tickets as an inducement to draw business, taking the position that shippers will not use the Allegheny freight station when they have to pay 10 and 20 cents for teams crossing the bridges.

WELLS WOMAN HELD.

Outcome of an Allegheny Raid Instituted by the Humane Society.

At the police hearings before Magistrate Samuel Abernathy at the Allegheny central station yesterday Mrs. Bell Wells of No. 712 Ellsworth street, was sent to jail in default of $500 bail for a hearing tomorrow. She is charged with harboring a minor child.

John Tyson of No. 880 Western avenue, who was arrested in connection with the case, was fined $5 and costs, which were paid. Hazel, the 10-year-old daughter of Mrs. Wells, was held at the police station and some disposition of her case will be made today.

The raid was made by two Allegheny policemen and two agents of the Humane society. As there was no direct evidence against Tyson the fine was imposed because a number of vile pictures were found in his possession.

George J. Gould's plan to put a messenger call in every dwelling is an ambitious but thoroughly sensible one. Increased use of the telegraph will surely follow an increase of accessibility. The great popularity of the telephone is due to the fact that one does not have to go out of his way to get at it. The business man has it at his hand; the householder can get to it in the next room. When the American District Telegraph is made as convenient A. D. T. will become a more familiar sight than at present.

Johnson and Zimmerman come down to the Ohio Democratic convention in a neck-and-neck race. The best information is that the nomination depends upon the votes of 145 contesting delegates. In this situation Johnson has an advantage by having control of the organization, gained last year when he was supreme. It is well. Johnson will be more easily beaten than Zimmerman, as he represents Bryan in Ohio. The Ohio Republicans desire no easier mark than Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland.

Another triumph is reported for the turbine engine. Rough weather has prevailed on the English channel during the past two weeks. The storms have interfered with the speed of channel steamers and with the comfort of their passengers. The turbine boat, alone, has made its regular trips, pretty nearly on time, the longest being 70 minutes. It has run with notable smoothness as compared with the other boats and has become extremely popular with travelers. There can be no longer any question but the turbine steamer is eminently adapted to the navigation of the channel, whether it would be suited to trans-Atlantic operation or not. It will likely not be long until it is given a trial on a big liner.

Disclosures made by Dr. Batt in connection with the smallpox epidemic in the Pleasant valley section of Allegheny are somewhat startling. They leave no room for wonder that the disease has spread, for it appears quarantine regulations were almost wholly disregarded. The doctor makes a very proper suggestion that all placards announcing the existence of contagious disease should also briefly notify the public of the power of summary prosecution and the penalties for violation of quarantine. Not every person who comes in contact with contagion will take the disease, but even though he escape that penalty he may communicate the contagion to other persons who are susceptible. For that reason strict quarantine should be observed as the one certain means of preventing epidemics.

Taxation of corporate franchises was a principal feature of the pledges of the Citizens party. In common with the abolition of the delinquent tax office and the application of merit rules to the public service this pledge is unredeemed. There have been spasmodic movements toward passing an ordinance, especially in campaign times, but the corporations have apparently lent too much assistance in elections to be worried by any enactment. The halt at present is over the discovery that the city has no power to levy such a tax. The willingness to impose it may be paraded during the campaign, but if the public service corporations do all that is expected of them there will be nothing to the effort. At least so the story goes and the dallying lends color to it. As a matter of fact the city might go ahead, impose the tax and allow those who are affected by it to contest its legality.

Dr. Shenton, an English scientist in charge of the radiographic department of a well-known hospital, expresses surprise over Thomas A. Edison's opinion about Roentgen rays. Dr. Shenton says he has never heard of injury following exposure to those mysterious rays during his years of experience in treating disease by them. On the contrary, he has observed most beneficent results in cases of rodent ulcer and other serious lesions. There is an apparent contradiction here, but it is only apparent. None of the doctor's patients, it may be assumed, have ever been exposed day after day, for hours at a time to the X-rays. Mr. Edison and his assistant worked long and continuously. Dr. Shenton himself would have suffered rather than his patients, just as the attendants in the lupus hospitals are more likely to suffer ill effects from Dr. Finsens' ultra-violet rays than are the patients who are exposed for only a few minutes each day. Dr. Shenton surely knows that while a small dose of strychnine is a nerve tonic a large dose is paralytic in its effect. Great caution is advisable at all times in dealing with the mysterious agents of nature.

Just now Germany is worrying about the degeneracy of its youth. Its discouragement is based upon the results of examinations for military service, and as every able-bodied young man in the country is expected to give three years to the army those examinations are a pretty fair index to the physical condition of the male population under 21 years of age. The rejections on account of weak heart number about 17 in each 1,000. Twenty years ago less than two in 1,000 were rejected for that reason. In 1898 the number of rejections reached almost 18 per 1,000. The doctors charge the defection primarily to the fact that boys are overworked, put to work too young and secondarily to the use of tobacco and stimulants before reaching maturity. They might go a step farther. Universal military duty and the burden of a huge standing army compels parents to put boys to work in their early years, as well as forcing them to overstudy at the same time. Even at that the condition of the young Germans is no worse than that of young Frenchmen and Englishmen. During the Boer war the military surgeons of England were astounded by the incapacity of the British youth. So many were defective that the standards were modified in practice, in order to get a sufficient number of men to recruit the regiments in South Africa. Indeed we are not sure the American youth could show as good a percentage as the Germans.

Turkey's Submission.

With the recall of the Russian fleet from Turkish waters the demands of Russia to which Turkey has acceded, are given out for publication at St. Petersburg and Constantinople. They include the execution of the murderer of the Russian consul and his accomplices; the dismissal of officers remotely connected with the matter as by failure to prosecute the murderers without specific instruction; the discharge of Turkish officials in the disturbed provinces and the substitution of European officers and, finally, the utmost effort to restore peace and order at once, under conditions more likely to maintain peaceful administration.

These are drastic orders, but not more so than the situation calls for, nor than Russia might have been expected to make. They cannot be construed as of special advantage to Russia beyond the increase of prestige and respect it will gain from Turkish administrators and officers. It is known that Turkey has asked Belgium to name four commanders, and it may be assumed it has made similar requests of other European governments. This will result practically in giving the Turkish provinces in Europe Christian governors and administrators. That should be satisfactory to all save Albania, where the presence of foreign officers will give offense to a majority of the population. Possibly it is excepted from the requirement.

The fact must not be overlooked, however, that Macedonia is in a state of insurrection and that what might be satisfactory at another time may not now suffice to quiet the turmoil. Beyond the present situation this development can hardly fail in the end to segregate Macedonia from Turkey. The terms are not quite identical with those arranged for a part of the Balkan territory after the war of 1876, under which that territory soon slipped entirely from Turkish control, but the likeness is strong enough to be suggestive. In any event the submission of Turkey is complete.

The Cold Truth.

Touching the matter of river improvement, our esteemed contemporary, the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, has fallen into error concerning the position of this paper. Because we cited the examples of Sharon, Butler and Dubois to show that navigable water is not the only "open sesame to prosperity," the Tribune has jumped to the conclusion that we do not favor river improvement. On the contrary, The Gazette desires to see every river in the country improved. It heartily favors the nine-foot stage for the Ohio and the slackwatering of the Allegheny. The point on which it refuses to "go along" is the proposition to handicap a much larger traffic than that of the Allegheny river, or even than that of the Ohio river, for the sentimental purpose of giving clearance to boats that are not needed on the Allegheny. The Gazette stands most emphatically for the largest possible transportation facilities for the Pittsburgh region and has been foremost in demanding such facilities. But it does not make the mistake of adding to the disabilities of overloaded lines of transportation in the alleged interest of a line that is not utilizing its present capacity. The Gazette favors the slackwatering of the Allegheny, and is doing all it can to detach that commendable work from the fallacious propaganda about higher bridges which, if it gained its object, would do more injury to Pittsburgh and Allegheny than any possible navigation of the Allegheny river.

The Tribune is in error in attributing the prosperity of Pittsburgh entirely to free navigation on the Monongahela. It says: "Prior to the taking over of the dams and locks on the Monongahela by the federal government, and their proper improvement, the manufacturing establishments along its banks were comparatively few, and not of importance. It is otherwise today, and it began to be otherwise immediately on the proper improvement of the river." Pittsburghers who are old enough to know the facts and to remember them will not agree to this in its sweeping entirety. The great works at Braddock, McKeesport and Homestead were located before the government took over the property of the Monongahela Navigation Company. The tolls of that company were no material handicap to their success. They have grown since, and so have the works of the Jones & Laughlin Company on the Monongahela valley side of Pittsburgh, a concern that makes more use of river transportation than the Carnegie or any other manufacturing company in the Pittsburgh district. New plants have sprung up in the Monongahela valley since the river was made free, but hardly anyone in Pittsburgh gives credit for the fact to the freeing of the river. The Carnegie works on the Allegheny have expanded less than those on the Monongahela simply because they have not had as much room to spread as those outside the city limits. They have, in proportion, as much river traffic as works at Braddock, Homestead and Duquesne, mainly coal, with a somewhat longer haul, because Monongahela coal is exclusively used.

Since the Tribune has opened this subject it may be well, also, to call its attention to the development of the Monongahela valley above the limits of navigation. Fairmont and Clarksburg are fully as prosperous as Morgantown, which is at the head of navigation. They have increased in population and industries even more rapidly. Morgantown itself has had an access of new life since it has acquired direct railroad connection with Pittsburgh. The dullest spot in the Monongahela valley from Pittsburgh to Clarksburg is that lying along pool No. 7, where there is no railroad. The ancient town of New Geneva, famous as the scene of early glass manufacture west of the Alleghany mountains, the home of Albert Gallatin, patriot, statesman and enterprising financier—and its neighbor across the river, Greensboro, the home of ancient pottery, those are the only towns in the valley that have not had a boom. Their time is coming. The shriek of the locomotive whistle will soon awaken their echoes. Navigable water has been of use to them. It will serve them better in the future. But it is not the whole thing. If it were left to a vote of those two towns they would surrender their navigable water for a railroad. Here in Pittsburgh we want both, for we realize the advantage of sending out 11,000,000 tons by water in one year, though we also understand that the traffic crossing over our rivers is greater than that upon them.

King Cotton and Others.

There is an interesting point at issue between the secretary of agriculture and the bull pool in cotton, but when there is disagreement between such eminent authorities as the secretary and the gentlemen who now own last season's cotton crop, who shall decide? The secretary of agriculture is not alone in condemnation of the cotton corner, but the cornerers do not care much about condemnation so long as the product in their hands commands the market price. The secretary says they are wicked and they say they are not wicked, but merely far-sighted and forehanded business men. As long as it appeared that the corner produced by them was wholly artificial, such declarations as those of the secretary of agriculture passed current as wholly justifiable. But if it be the fact that there is an actual shortage of about half a million bales of cotton, then some of the condemnation that has been heaped on the owners of the visible supply will have to be withdrawn. Of course, that is different from awarding to the pool laurels on its claim that it is a public benefactor by reason of having steadied the market for the raw material by getting it all into its own possession, but until the doctrine is adopted by society that no man or set of men has the right to buy with its own money what it does not need in its own immediate business, or for its own use, it cannot be said that the men who own the cotton have exceeded the accepted proprieties any more than Joseph exceeded them when he bought up all the corn of the land of Egypt. As the public has seen it, the cotton market has been cornered by speculators; as they put it, the market has been cornered by conditions of shortage of which they were shrewd enough to reap the benefit. The corners to which the public most object are those effected by the main strength of money, producing an artificial scarcity and making an artificial price for someone to pay because of the interference with the ordinary laws of supply and demand. The bull pool in cotton contends that it has not caused an artificial scarcity or interfered with the laws of trade, but has merely taken advantage of them; that there is an actual scarcity caused by the shortage of last season's crop and the backwardness of the new crop; that before the new crop comes forward there will not be a bale of cotton in the market and, therefore, that cotton is worth not merely what they are asking for it and selling it at, but more, and that they ought to be thanked for their moderation. Nevertheless, as these owners of the same cotton are the outward and visible sign of a cornered product, their protestations may not have a great deal of weight against the claim of the victims of high prices, and the last has probably not been heard of the matter. If, however, there be the shortage alleged, and if the crop of this year is no larger than the crop of last year (and it will probably be smaller), the world, which is so largely dependent on our southern states for its cotton supply, is probably in for an era of higher prices for cotton that can only be neutralized by decreased consumption.

School of Journalism.

Columbia university's college of journalism, endowed by Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, has attracted considerable attention and comment. Not all of the comment has been commendatory, though several high authorities have indorsed the project heartily. The best reason offered for creating this school appears in Mr. Pulitzer's paper, which sets forth the fact that the last census enumerated 114,073 lawyers and 30,098 journalists in this country. There were by the same authority 100 law schools with 1,106 professors, but not a single school or college of journalism.

Possibly our legal friends may object to this style of putting journalism on a par with law among the learned professions. If so, Mr. Pulitzer's paper may quote for justification from Thomas Jefferson, who said he would rather have newspapers without government than government without newspapers in this country. Then the blow may be softened when it is taken into account that the learning needed by lawyer and editor are precisely the same up to a certain point. The journalist need not go into the intricacies of legal forms or practice and the lawyer needs no knowledge of type, ink, presses, or even proof sheets. Both, however, should be well grounded in the principles of constitutional law, civil government, monetary system, moral ethics, political history, the English language and literature. There is no good reason why each should not study these subjects with special reference to his chosen profession. The lawyer does; the journalist may.

The strongest disapproval of the college of journalism, however, has come from the sanctum, where eminent journalists are prone to the view that reporters and even editors are, like poets, born, not made. There is much truth in that view, but the born poet is not prohibited the study of prosody, meter, music or rhetoric. They are of advantage to him. The born newspaper man will not be injured by the acquisition of any knowledge whatever, for he may need the information "to decide a bet," or to enlighten "old subscriber," who wants to know. There are rudiments of the newspaper business that may be taught. They are taught daily by the city editor and they could be as well taught in school.

It is true that many of the leading newspaper writers and managers have been educated in the "shop." It is equally true that many attorneys of distinction have "read law" in an office instead of a university. It is fortunate for some professions that there is a road into them for the self-taught geniuses who have the persistence and energy to make their way when lacking the means to obtain the "higher education" in school. Yet there is a grand field for the colleges to teach more fortunate young men the first principles of their professions. There ought always to be an open door for the young man who acquires knowledge and ability without advantages, but there ought to be training schools as short-cuts for those who can afford to attend them.

Mr. Pulitzer's plan includes an advisory board, of which a majority of members shall always be journalists of reputation. The first board consists of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, Whitelaw Reid, John Hay, St. Clair McKelway, Andrew D. White, Charles W. Eliot, Victor F. Lawson and Gen. Charles H. Taylor. We take it that under such auspices the new college will at once become a helpful institution and that it may assist many perplexed editors to find young men for their staffs who are capable of imbibing an idea or grasping a news item, and of telling the story in good, terse English.

At an Atlantic City hotel on Saturday the chef tried to shoot a waiter, the waiter knocked the cook down with a plate, the chef's assistant went at the waiter with a cleaver and other waiters made it unpleasant for the chef's assistant and the chef until the police came and suppressed the other waiters. The guests who had good reason to commit all these assaults and batteries, but who didn't, are now convinced that crime works out its own punishments even at Atlantic City, and that the iron heel of the oppresser plants the seeds of its own downfall.

The Humbert family, which is charged with swindling gullible people to the extent of $10,000,000, has been sentenced at Paris to five years' imprisonment or only one year for each $2,000,000. Honesty, however, still continues to be the best policy for the ordinary run of people, and the next best policy is to steer clear of confidence games worked by Humberts and others.

The Chattanooga News declares that "In a contest in Tennessee between Roosevelt and Cleveland, the former would win by a bigger majority than the state gave Bryan in 1900," and it may be added that if Tennessee people were to vote for their best interests Roosevelt would get a majority over any Democrat.

Perhaps the German kaiser ordered beans and ate them merely because he likes beans, but it might nevertheless tend to promote and cement international good feeling of the governments if the New England states should reciprocate by setting apart a day for the consumption of delicatessen.

THE YACHTING ENTHUSIAST.

He'd never had a dollar bill to bet in all his life;
He knew not if a binnacle was some new kind of knife
Or recent brand of breakfast food; he knew not any whit
About the make-up of a keel, a yard-arm or a sprit.
He knew not if the coafer-board was some new kind of game,
He knew not why Sir Thomas held with Shamrock three-eyes came;
Just one cold fact before his mind loomed constantly in view—
He knew which bore the British flag and which red, white and blue.

He knew not anything about the running of a yacht;
And even if he'd been supplied with forty weeks for thought
He would have failed in toto in a treatise as to why
Reliance ought to win the cup and keep it; but O my!
He stood and watched the bulletins from 10 a. m. till night
And howled with joy whene'er he saw the thing was going "right."
One only fact—he wished no more—this ignoramus knew;
Which yacht displayed the English flag and which red, white and blue.

You laugh at him—ah, have a care. He knows not ships and sails,
And any news but "won" or "lost" can tell him wondrous tales.
The ocean and its briny waste hold mysteries for him,
And e'en his grasp of sporting lore may misty be, and dim.
But while he cares who wins because his flag is borne by her,
And while the thought that she might lose would make his eyesight blur,
We know he's good and loyal and we know his heart is true—
He cares how fares his country's flag the old red, white and blue.

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be!

Our times are in His hand
Who saith: 'A whole is planned.
Youth shows but half; trust God; see all, be not afraid.'

"Thy thoughts and feelings shall not die,
Nor leave thee when gray hairs are nigh.
A melancholy slave.
But an old age serene and bright,
And lovely as a Lapland night,
Shall lead thee to thy grave."

Time, time, with its inexorable flight and its inevitable results!

"I know some of you have passed through the fiery furnace, but I hope that at the last each may be able to say:

"Time has laid his hand gently, not smiting it,
But as a harper lays his open palm
Upon his harp to deaden its vibrations."

Thus did Col. J. T. Holmes conclude a beautiful and satisfying address to the survivors of the Fifty-second Ohio, and their comrades of other regiments at the reunion held in Stanton grove, Steubenville, last Thursday.

Col. Holmes succeeded to the command of this famous regiment after Col. Dan McCook had won a lone star and assumed the command of a brigade. Dan McCook made the Third brigade of the Third division of the Fourteenth army corps famous during the Atlanta campaign, sealing its fame with his life's blood in the heroic, but futile, assault at Kenesaw.

Col. Holmes was a picturesque officer, but none the less gallant and efficient. Tall, lithe and sinewy he impressed one as having been born for strenuous times. His long, black hair, swarthy complexion, keen eye, and firm lip, at once suggested Logan, McPherson and Custer—not that he closely resembled them in person or manner, but that he exhibited characteristics peculiar to those distinguished leaders, and like these he was a leader of men, rather than a driver, a superior person, a boss.

Nor was his popularity limited to the Fifty-second regiment, but wherever known in the army he was respected and accorded full confidence of the fighting men. The wonder was that he had not been given a star and a place where he could have made a name for himself rivaling that of his old commander, Dan McCook.

But he was wedded to his regiment, and being loyal and true, and modest withal he was content to do what he could in the place assigned to him, and await orders.

The announcement that Col. Holmes would certainly be at this reunion not only called out an unusual number of the survivors of the Fifty-second, but of the Ninety-eighth, Forty-third and others, and from the heartiness and warmth of their greetings he couldn't distinguish his own "terribles" from others.

And what was the difference? They were known from each other only by the different numbers on their caps, and separated only by imaginary camp lines.

It was characteristic of Sherman's army, as you may have discovered, that it was one body, although of many numbers. And so with the several corps and divisions, each was one body, compact, sympathetic and loyal. To strike a soldier in Sherman's army was to touch any other soldier to it. And the same held good in all the sub-divisions, even down to the company mess.

Those who had not seen the lithe, Indian-limbed warrior since the war were scarcely able to recognize in the tall, rather pale, thin-haired and gray man who persisted in modestly occupying a front seat, the strong, rugged, bronzed commander from whom they parted two score years ago.

Col. Holmes lives in Columbus, O., where he enjoys a law practice equal to the best in the state; while his home life among his books and works of art and surrounded by a lovely family and legions of heartsome friends, is about all that mortal man can, or ought to expect in this world.

* * * * *

Col. Holmes made note of things on the field that may have escaped the eye of some, and have been forgotten by others. Among these is the following bit of history concerning the battle of Chickamauga, which is not only interesting but important, and may even come handy to the writers of historic novels in centuries to come:

"September 14, marched early to Rossville, Ga. Rations scarce. Encamped, facing the Gap.

"September 15 to 18—Lying in camp without rations. In this interim occurred the freak on the part of Gen. Gordon Granger, commanding reserve corps, so stripping and tying up soldiers of Steadman's division and McCook's brigade for the purpose of whipping them. It was not done. If it had been I think Gordon Granger would have been killed then and there, for enlisted men were, from starvation, so far ripe for mutiny, if a soldier had been struck by Granger's order. I have no doubt some of you men had your guns ready for just such use."

"I had! I had!" came from several quarters in the audience, and the tones were firm and even bitter as the experience was recalled.

"Yet Gen. Granger was a good soldier in the main for all this awful wrong contemplated. The men had been foraging too liberally off the country while without rations. This was the offense.

"I saw the conference between Granger and Dan McCook going on, but personally heard no portion of it. The cadence, as lawyer and soldier, had his hands full to persuade that mutinous spirit, which was aroused in Granger, that the danger from the men was real, and that the offense vested for their vindication on their non-soldierly which knew no law. Nobody was whipped, the tension relaxed, the whirl and roar of battle came and the Ittle Rossville incident grifted into the past as so much history forgotten even by many who knew of some of its features.

"On the evening of September 20, in the dusk, at Cloud's house, Granger, himself an artillery man, took personal charge of Barnett's battery for a little time. It was in the gloaming. 'Chickamauga's Dreadful Day' was winding up. There came a lull. Just behind the battery were gathered, when the sounds of the struggle died away, Granger, Garfield, Dan McCook and U. four regimental commanders, Harman, Dilworth, Mason and myself, and Capt. Rothacker. I am uncertain at this moment, about the commanding officer of the Twenty-second Indiana.

"Granger speaking: 'Give them a salvo, captain,' and Barnett's battery contemporaneously belches its six 12-pounder shells at the confederate battery and line near the McDonald house, to the southeast 80 or a 100 rods. There were six responding explosions at the fillets of those shells; then there was a pause.

"Before the twilight came down, we could see the Snodgrass house and the Snodgrass hill, two miles to our right and had heard, in our own lulls, through the late afternoon, the terrific work which Thomas and Steadman were conducting there, where the Ninety-eighth and others made the courage of Jefferson county men immortal. The smoke of battle was everywhere. All was now silent. After a pause of say three minutes—the human heart is not an accurate register of time at such a crisis, and it may have seemed 30—Granger speaking again: 'Give them another, Captain,' and with the words almost came the thunder around, the six Parrotts speaking as one gun. And Chickamauga battle was closed; with some disasters featured, but not a defeat—never, never! It was the sublimest testimony in the west of the courage of the American soldier.

"I have never seen it noted in history, but I know it as a fact, attested by my own senses, observed and noted then and there and borne in memory to this hour, and for the first time in life I make my appeal to my comrades for its truth, the battery of Dan McCook's brigade, as brilliant a bit of war mechanism, and as brilliantly commanded as any on any field of the civil war, in the manner I have described, shut the last valley and closed the greatest battle of the west—bloody Chickamauga."

Talked of in New York

GEORGE C. JENKS.

(By Postal Wire to The Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Among the important and attractive features of the international yacht races, attention must be vouchsafed to the costumes of the yachting girls who were guests of various yearning men from the New York Yacht club. There is not much use in possessing a pleasure ship unless you have ladies aboard, and certainly there is no comfort for a girl in going for a day's sail unless she is properly attired. So the gowns displayed on some of the fancy schooners and steamers are wonders to the masculine eye and joyous to femininity. Here are some observed today: A costume of white sail-cloth, embroidered in heavy linen floss, and the colors of the Bellaire on a smart yachting cap; a short-skirted seagoing costume of dark blue; a yachting suit of heavy gray linen, embroidered in green, topped by a sailor hat of coarse gray pallie, decorated with a pair of broad-spreading green parrot wings and loops of black velvet; a gown of all white, touched up with emerald green belt, veil and shoes; a fetching costume of rural blue serge, embroidered in scarlet anchors and cables, and there were others. The get-up that created the biggest sensation among the women was worn by a popular actress who is appearing nightly in a musical comedy. It was of champagne cloth, with a long, full, graceful skirt, and a Louis XV. coat. The bonnet was a modish little toque of champagne straw, with a narrow peaked front and decorated with a Langtry rosette of white watered velvet, matching the notched collar and cuffs of the coat. These descriptions are vouched for by an expert, or I would not venture to set them down in such a decided way.

Parks Under the Weather.

It is reported from the Tombs that Boss Parks, the convicted walking delegate, takes his situation very hard. He is not an exception of getting a new trial as his lawyers seem to be, evidently, but when he talks at all, which is seldom, he expresses the belief that his conviction will not stand, in as brave a tone as he can assume. Tombs employes would not be surprised if he would break down personally under the strain.

Tallest For Second Time.

It does not seem more than a quarter of a century ago that the New York Tribune building was erected, when people were talking about its great tower, and referring to it as the highest point on Manhattan island. Figures say that the building was begun 30 years since. Before it was built the highest structure in Manhattan was Trinity church, reckoning from the top of its spire. Today Trinity nestles amid a muddle of skyscrapers, and is as insignificant as such a magnificent architectural achievement can be. Nine more stories are to be put on the Tribune, making it 300 feet taller than at present, and it will be once more the highest building in Manhattan.

Col. "Bill" Brown.

Whether the New York News comes to be sold by auction or not, certainly the discussion of its affairs in connection with the proposed sale will not be beneficial to it as a newspaper. In spite of this, however, there are thousands of people who swear by it. An old New Yorker was telling me today that he remembers the News as long as he remembers anything, and that it was always religiously read by his father and mother when he was a boy. It is a fact that the paper has a clientele of its own, and that it comprises many of the old-time residents of New York city. Col. "Bill" Brown, who is opposing the sale, was for many years its editor, and has always been a picturesque New Yorker of the old school. He is as loyal and outspoken as Henry Watterson, and, though every inch a fighter, has probably fewer enemies than any man of his prominence in the metropolis.

Everyone Went to Church.

All the churches in New York were jammed today. This is a condition which frequently prevails, because of the immense floating population from other cities. The reason for the excessive number of worshipers everywhere today was, of course, that the yacht races have brought thousands of people here, who like to be near the scene of the contest, even if they do not attend the races themselves. Besides these, there is the home-coming multitude from Europe, which is being discharged from ships all along the North river front every day. Most of the returning globe-trotters stay in New York for a few days before dispersing to distant points where their homes are, and many of them go to church in New York, even though they are not regular in attending their home churches. It is a good thing for a city that there are strangers when here, because it may mean that they will be more attentive to their religious duties while they get home. That they hear better sermons than in their home towns is a matter of doubt.

The Goddess of Chance.

New Yorkers are wondering whether there is anything to be depended on in the report that Richard Canfield may establish an "American Monaco" at Saratoga. Although gambling was prevented, except in a few isolated cases, this summer, at the Spa, the feeling prevails that amusements of this kind belonge to the place. Canfield is not the man to take up any insignificant enterprise of this kind, and if he should establish such a resort as is talked about, it will be a splendid one. It is said he will have a magnificent garden, with a restaurant better than any ever seen at Saratoga. This is a large contract, but no one here doubts that Canfield can fill it if conditions are at all favorable.

Would Have Been the Same in a Church.

A man fell dead while watching a game in a Broadway billiard parlor yesterday. He was sitting quietly in a high chair, and was not disorderly. Neither was he gambling on the game. Under these circumstances, there does not seem much chance for anyone to point to his sudden passing away as a judgment on him for public exhibition. His time, although doubtless some strict moralists will see a solemn warning in the case.

Democratic Prediction.

This year is certain: There will be no overwhelming confidence displayed on the presidential nomination at the next Democratic national convention.—Atlanta Constitution.

Russia and Turkey.

The fiery indignation of Russia over the killing of her Ambassador of a consul at Monastir by an overwrought and insulted Turkish policeman is now seen to have been very good business. There need be no doubt at the sincerity of the Turkish regret. The sultan must have been moved to have put to death, on his own account and of his own accord, the malefactor patriot who has brought all this trouble upon him. To avert Russian wrath he would doubtless have sent the head of the policeman to St. Petersburg on a charger. But that was by no means what Russia wanted. Mere revenge is not business. But to get a firmer in the Turkish pie, to interfere in the internal concerns of the Ottoman empire and reorganize them in her own interest—this was distinctly business, and it is a stroke of business that Russia seems to have accomplished by a judicious mixture of intrigue and intimidation.

Things have turned out very luckily for her. What she had to fear was, of course, the concert of Europe. And the concert of Europe has been disarmed by precisely the same means by which it was disarmed 25 years ago, when the reports of Turkish atrocities committed upon the Christian subjects of the sultan so inflamed all Europe that governments were induced to give Russia a free hand in cleaning house for Turkey. That is just what is happening now.—New York Times.

\+ \+ \+

Coincidently with the arrival of the Russian fleet at Midia, a port on the Turkish Black sea coast, the sultan accepted the demands presented by the Russian minister at Constantinople, the most important of which is that European officers be appointed to command the gendarmerie in Macedonia. Austria, it is expected, will reenforce Russia with a set of identical demands. The feeling prevails in political circles at Constantinople that these steps are preliminary to a European conference on Turkey's system of administration. If such a conference is to be the outcome, the one black spot in European civilization will be eradicated. Under a guarantee forced upon the sultan by a concerted movement of the powers, Christians, either foreign or native, would find reasonable protection from the molestations of fanatical followers of Mohammed. A Turk needs only the provocation of a gun or of summary punishment to be convinced that the laws of civilization apply as well to Turkey as they do to Germany or England.—Albany Journal.

Turkey's present compliance with Russia's demands confirms the view that the sultan knows that to his present predicament he has nothing to expect from any other power. Whether this means that advantage will be taken of the situation to introduce into the disturbed Balkan provinces a radical measure of reform is still uncertain. The Russian demands, so far as they are known, would scarcely achieve this desirable object. As disclosed in Count Lamsdorff's note to his minister in Constantinople, they would fall far short of it. Dismissal of Turkish officers who have not kept faith with the natives and release from prison of peasants who have been prosecuted without cause will not establish an orderly government in Macedonia. Sufficient of adequate police forces under foreign officers might do much to prevent turbulence and gross injustice, but even this will not afford a safe guarantee against Turkish greed and cruelty.

Until the sultan is compelled to carry out to the full extent the reforms which he has repeatedly promised to put into effect, and the administration of Macedonia has been given into the hands of a Christian governor who is capable and trustworthy, somewhat on the original stipulations there will be small hope of anything like settled conditions in the Balkans. The powers have the opportunity to bring about this salutary change now. Have they the requisite nerve?—New York Commercial Advertiser.

\+ \+ \+

Despite his previous protestations that he had gone to the limit the sultan did bend his neck to the Russian heel and grant the demands. This a stroke of war is averted and the former condition of comfortable peace is restored. The sultan is an accomplished war averter when it suits his purposes and his needs. He is a finished prevaricator and a finished procrastinator. It is by no means assured that he will do everything that he now promises the czar. But the way may have been opened for a further European demand for genuine Balkan reform. Already it is suggested that Austria will present a note identical with that of Russia, and there is a drift of continental opinion toward a consolidation of the powers.—Washington Star.

\+ \+ \+

The sultan of Turkey surprises no one by accepting the program of reform presented to him at the hands of Russia and Austrian diplomacy. He is past master of diplomatic subterfuge. He always promises, seldom performs. The time he views he will disarm or remove certain local officials and place European officers in command of gendarmerie in Macedonia. He will do it—if he is compelled. And then the solution of the problem of the powers and may be again postponed.—New York World.

\+ \+ \+

Caught between pressure from abroad and increasing disorder at home, the porte has naturally granted the demands of Russia for active duties the killing of a consul. The executive demand for the appointment by stipulations for the term of Turkish administration of Albania and Macedonia, and it is most unlikely that Russia will in this matter accept more assurances. Guarantees of virtual autonomy are necessary, and even if Russia were inclined to let the Balkan question rest another summer a while longer, the other powers are likely to have something to say in the matter. Germany's reported desire to allow the Turks to deal with the rising in their own way seems calling enough. It recalls curiously the new discredited attitude of England toward the east

KEPT POLICE AT BAY WITH BRICKS

Crowd Drinking in South Side Place Escaped After Badly Injuring Officers.

PROPRIETOR WAS ARRESTED

Walking Speakeasy Captured in East End Who Sold Whiskey in Any Quantity Desired—A Big Haul on Halket Street.

A raid on an alleged speakeasy and disorderly house yesterday afternoon caused a fierce fight, in which two policemen figured on one side and about 15 men armed with bricks on the other. One policeman was badly cut and all the offenders except the proprietor of the alleged speakeasy escaped. The latter was lodged in jail.

Policemen Joseph Hall and Michael Johnson of No. 7 police station were detailed to raid the house of William Goop at Thirtieth and Mary streets, South Side. They visited the house at about 2 o'clock and made a search. They found but one visitor. The policemen arrested Goop and the visitor and started out the door with them when they heard singing in the rear of the house.

Immediately the officers went in the direction whence the singing came and finally reached a door leading to a back yard. They opened the door and stepped out. In the yard were about 15 men drinking. At the sight of the policemen the men picked up some bricks that were piled up in a corner and started a fusillade.

One brick struck Hall on the head, injuring him badly. He also was bruised about the body by the bricks, as was his companion. During the brick-throwing the officers endeavored to draw their revolvers. By the time they had done so the men had plied out into the street by a back gate.

Policeman Johnson telephoned for assistance, but the squad of officers arrived too late. Goop, however, was kept in custody during the fight and he was taken to No. 7 police station. He will be given a hearing this morning, at which an effort will be made to learn the names of his visitors. Policeman Hall's wounds were dressed by Clity Physician B. A. Booth and he was taken to his home in South Seventeenth street.

A walking speakeasy was arrested at the corner of Center and South Highland avenues by Inspector Boyle of No. 6 police station yesterday afternoon. George Washington, a negro of No. 6008 Beltier street, was selling to negroes whiskey in any quantity desired from bottles that he carried on his person. Later in the day the police arrested Jane Jackson, also colored, at the address given by Washington. She was found filling bottles and anxiously awaiting the policeman's return.

Mrs. Maggie Fitzsimmons, No. 2415 Forbes street, was arrested by Captain Teeters of No. 4 police station yesterday on a charge of selling liquor without a license. Seven visitors were also arrested.

Pat Butler and wife of No. 5 Halket street were arrested yesterday together with 12 visitors on a similar charge. Among the liquor found on the premises were 18 eighth kegs of beer, 12 dozen quarts of whisky and six gallons of whisky.

Policeman James Mamulia and a squad of officers raided the house of Mrs. Mary Fitzsimmons, No. 2415 Forbes street, last night, arresting Mrs. Fitzsimmons and seven visitors. The woman was charged at No. 4 police station with keeping a disorderly house.

LEAGUE DID NOT ACT.

Union Label of Boot and Shoe Workers Is Not Adopted by U. L. L. of W. Pa.

In anticipation of a fight over the indorsement of the label of the boot and shoe workers there was a large attendance at the regular meeting of the United Labor League last night at No. 535 Smithfield street, although the league failed to take such action. At its last meeting the question of indorsing the label was brought up and defeated. It was thought that at the meeting last night the opposition, which is alleged to have come mainly from the Knights of Labor delegates, would be overcome and the desired result obtained. Several delegates made ineffectual attempts to reopen the question last night, and the squabble that was predicted was avoided.

The league promised to assist local No. 44, Electrical Workmen, in its fight against the Pittsburgh & Allegheny Telephone Company for recognition of a union scale. A committee from the Labor day celebration attended the meeting and gave information concerning the arrangements. The league objected to the route of the parade from Magee street to Bluff street, and appointed a special committee to confer with the general Labor day committee in regard to the change. The league will throw its influence toward the celebration. All of the affiliated unions have already signified their willingness to take part in the parade.

Six delegates were admitted to the league last night from the street car men, electrical workers and fixture hangers.

WOMAN JUMPED IN WELL.

Widow of a Former Mayor Attempted Suicide and May Not Recover.

HUNTINGTON, W. V., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Mrs. Sarah Willis, widow of Mayor Hamilton Willis of Ceredo, attempted suicide last night by leaping into a 60-foot well at the home of her father, near Buffalo Shoals. Mayor Willis died three months ago, after a continuous career as mayor of Ceredo for nearly a quarter of a century. His wife has constantly brooded over his death.

In her descent into the well she seized hold of a rope, which caused the windlass to revolve rapidly, and this alarmed persons sleeping near. She was recovered from the well at 10 o'clock today and signs of life are yet noticeable, but no hopes are entertained for her recovery. The well contained only a foot of water. Mrs. Willis is 67 years old and a daughter of the Hon. Beccus Bowen, who was a member of the West Virginia constitutional convention.

To Dismantle Soap Plant.

ZANESVILLE, O., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—It is learned on good authority that the Star soap works here are to be dismantled by the new owners, Procter & Gamble of Cincinnati, just as soon as the stock on hand is worked off, and the machinery will be removed to Cincinnati. Thus a payroll of $10,000 a month will be lost to Zanesville.

PITTSBURGHER DROWNED IN SURF

HE TOOK A FIT WHILE BATHING

Lifeguards Were Engaged in Rescue of Another Imperiled Bather and Excitement Brought on Fatal Attack of Epilepsy—Bit His Tongue Off.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Young's Ocean Pier,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 23.

John Moore, who, until two years ago, was a resident of the South Side, Pittsburgh, was drowned this morning in the surf at the foot of St. Charles place. Moore came to the shore this morning to meet some friends, and about 9 o'clock he went in bathing with Joseph Griscom of that city. They were both good swimmers and went out beyond the other bathers, but were not across the danger line. Moore, it is said, was subject to epileptic fits. While he and Griscom were swimming about, there was a cry for help beyond them and the life guards dashed past them with their buoy. The excitement caused Moore to have a fit of epilepsy, and he sank. The guards were busy with the man they had gone after and they did not hear Griscom's cry for help until it was too late. Griscom dived repeatedly to find his friend, and, becoming exhausted, was himself brought ashore on a life buoy.

The body of Moore was washed ashore about noon. When an examination was made by the county physician it was found that Moore had bitten his tongue off. The body was sent to his home, at 1438 N. Bouvier street, Philadelphia. Moore was 32 years old and leaves a widow.

Great Event Among the Fanciers.

One of the greatest attractions on Young's pier the coming week will be the second annual exhibition of the poultry, pigeon and pet stock show, which will be held in the large marine hall. This year's show will be again as large as the one held last summer, as there are over 1,100 entries for prizes and it will be a hard matter for the judges to decide the birds deserving of awards. There will be over $500 in gold alone for the respective prizes, which are divided into all kinds of classes and events.

LAWSUIT OVER COLLEGE MAY BE DISCONTINUED

Thiel Trustees May Give Up Building to Satisfy Greenville Citizens.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

GREENSBURG, PA., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—The trustees of Thiel college believe that the proceedings in equity instituted by the citizens of Greenville to prevent the removal of the college to Greensburg will be discontinued.

The attorneys for the defense have just discovered a contract entered into with the Greenville citizens which had never been known of before. The contract stipulates that if the college should ever remove from Greenville the citizens should get a percentage of the sum realized for the sale of the college building's in return for their contributions to the college. The percentage will amount to $5,000, it is said.

The trustees say that if the percentage is insisted upon they will give up the college buildings, but the contract does not affect the campus, from the sale of which enough should be realized to build a college at Greensburg. A circular was issued by the trustees stating that the college would open in Greensburg September 1. About 300 students are enrolled.

CARS BROKE LOOSE.

Freight Wreck on Pennsylvania Delays Main Line Traffic Over Three Hours.

While shifting early last night at Loyalhanna, near Latrobe, the engine to train No. 609, a west bound freight on the Pennsylvania railroad, was struck by part of the cars, which got beyond the control of the brakemen, and was derailed, with 10 gondolas. The two main line tracks at that point were entirely blocked for over three hours, delaying traffic of all kinds. The Pennsylvania limited, after a two-hour wait, passed around the wreck by using a siding. Before this could be done, however, a tipple of the Loyalhanna Coal Company had to be raised.

The engine of No. 609 was pushing a string of cars up to the siding, and as it was about to clear, the remainder of the train of 35 cars, which had been left on the main line, got in motion and ran down the hill, striking the engine. At the dispatcher's office last night it was said no one was injured.

Negro Shot During Fight.

SCOTTDALE, PA., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—A fight occurred late last night among a crowd of negroes which will likely result fatally. Sand Gordon suddenly appeared at his house last night and, drawing his wife in company with several men and other women, it is said, he proceeded to clear the premises. During the fight several shots were fired, and one of them struck Washington Strong in the abdomen. Immediately after the shooting Gordon escaped.

RAZORS FLEW IN AIR: ONE NEGRO MAY EXPIRE

Fierce Fight Among Ten Colored Men at Castle Shannon—Slasher, Who Probably Fatally Cut a Comrade, Escaped.

John Johnson, a negro, aged 60 years, lies at the point of death in the Homeopathic hospital as a result of a fierce melee in which 10 negroes and as many razors figured at Castle Shannon yesterday afternoon. The men who were engaged in the fight are all laborers employed by Foley & Co., contractors, who are building six miles of county roads through Castle Shannon. The fight occurred in the cook house of one of the camps.

The fight started between Johnson and a negro named Charles Hill, called "Skinny." He is about 32 years old. During their argument the two drew razors and started at each other. Hill succeeded in cutting Johnson several times about the neck and face and finally landed him in a corner, bleeding and unconscious.

Another negro started after Hill, and the remaining negroes took sides, and a terrible fight ensued, in which many were slashed with razors and considerable blood was spilled. The fight attracted those in the vicinity, and, as Castle Shannon has no police protection, the residents armed themselves and started for the cook house to stop the melee.

At the sight of the approaching posse the fighting negroes became alarmed and ran into the woods, leaving their dying companion, Johnson, bleeding in a corner. When the posse arrived there were found the dying negro and eight bloody razors on the floor. No chase was given the fugitives, but the office of the county detective was immediately notified.

Hill is said to be the man who did the damage to Johnson. It is probable detectives will be sent to the scene today and will arrest a number of negroes while they are at work.

Johnson was taken to the Homeopathic hospital and 20 stitches were placed in his wounds. He was terribly cut on both sides of his neck and face. It is said he cannot recover. Hill had worked for Foley & Co. for 14 years, and is said to have been ready and quick with his razor.

POLICE SQUAD RAIDED ARSENAL GROUNDS TO ARREST SOLDIERS

A conflict between the police authorities of the city and a portion of Uncle Sam's military establishment has arisen over the conduct of United States soldiers stationed at the Allegheny arsenal in Butler street, Lawrenceville. Last night a squad of seven policemen in plain clothes, under the command of Captain Peter Welsh and Lieutenant R. H. Robinson, raided the entrance and walls of the arsenal and arrested six men, one of whom was a soldier. A number of soldiers were sitting on the wall or loafing between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets when the police squad appeared.

Some person recognized one of the policemen and gave the alarm. With the exception of the one caught, all the soldiers escaped into the arsenal grounds, to which the police dared not follow. The soldier captured by the police was George Johnston, a private in Company A, Ninth United States infantry. He, with the other offenders, is charged with street loafing. A corporal from the arsenal tried to obtain his release, but Capt. Welsh refused to let him go unless a forfeit was posted.

The trouble at the arsenal started from complaints first made by the commandant. He sent a communication to Director Harry Moore, stating that residents of the vicinity gave much annoyance by sitting on the walls and loafing about the entrance at night. Acting upon orders, Capt. Welsh made 17 arrests. Later the citizens complained of the conduct of the soldiers, alleging that they monopolized the sidewalk. Several fights between the citizens and soldiers took place, and a few nights ago an elderly man, stepping from a street car, was knocked down and beaten by a soldier. The commandant of the arsenal was notified by the police that if better conduct was not observed by his men arrests would follow, and last night's raid was the result.

PERSONALS

"If the railroads were able to furnish all the cars demanded by the various coal companies there would soon be an over-production of soft coal that would work disaster to the operators," said Thomas L. Young, president of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Coal Company, and a close business partner of Senator Hanna, at the Union station last night. "There are so many new mines being opened, and many of them with a large capacity, that it is a good thing that the railroads are really short of cars.

"There are people not conversant with the coal business who think that there is room for more mines and they are rushing into the business. They invariably select the best equipment and are usually prepared to compete with the largest companies. They do not take into consideration how slow the mags of their mines have to remain idle on account of the shortage of cars. Of course when they go against a proposition of this kind they lose money every day. With this multiplication of mines and the increased output I think it is a Godsend that the railroads can't give us cars enough."

A. H. Morse and S. F. and W. M. Douglas, Wabash contractors, arrived in the city last night to confer with President J. W. Patterson of the Pittsburgh, Carnegie & Western in regard to the contracts for sections Nos. 44 and 45 of the Ohio river. These sections embrace two miles of track and will require the heaviest grading and masonry work on the entire Wabash extension from the west to Pittsburgh. It will be able to let or turn the contracts over within about five months," said W. M. Douglass last night at the Seventh Avenue hotel. "I do not think though that more than half of the work will be ready by that time."

Dr. William J. Holland, director of the Carnegie Museum, reached New York from his European trip on last Saturday and was due to spend the remainder of his vacation period with his family at Magnolia Beach, Mass. Dr. Holland went abroad about two months ago to superintend the packing of the valuable collection of curios which had been purchased in Belgium by Andrew Carnegie for the Pittsburgh museum. Dr. Holland was shown much attention by scientific men in Europe and was invited by the king of Belgium. At New York Dr. Holland tarried a few hours at the Manhattan hotel and took the first train for the seaside.

J. P. Mulvihill, president of the New Kensington brewery, and C. J. Andrews, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Brewers' association, left last night for Wheeling and Mr. Mulvihill said that he was not going out in connection with the consolidation of a number of breweries in the western part of the state. He said, however, that such a plan has been suggested and that there is a probability of it being carried through.

WRANGLE IS EXPECTED IN CONCILIATION BOARD

Operators Want Miners' President to Retract Alleged Statement.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

POTTSVILLE, PA., Aug. 23.—It has been officially decided that no witnesses will be taken from the anthracite region to New York on next Tuesday when Carroll D. Wright, who has been appointed umpire, will meet with the board of conciliation. The evidence of the witnesses taken in Potsville as to the blacklisting and discrimination against miners alleged to be practiced by the coal companies will be read to Mr. Wright.

A protracted wrangle is likely to ensue from the start, as the operators' representatives want District President Dettery, one of the members of the board, to take back his alleged statement that he will not abide by the umpire's decision in the blacklisting cases if the decision is against the miners.

Mr. Dettery says he was not quoted correctly, but his explanation of what he did say does not differ much from the original statement. The miners of this city say they will prove collusion between all the big coal companies to blacklist union men.

REFUSES TO TAKE DOWN ITS WIRES

Western Union May Be Soon Ousted from Pennsylvania Lines West.

TIME LIMIT HAS NOW EXPIRED

Postal Officials Expect Their Service to Be Speedily Substituted for Competitor's Between Pittsburgh and Chicago. Prepared for Change.

The forcible ouster of the Western Union from the Pennsylvania railroad lines west of Pittsburgh to Chicago and the substitution of their own service is daily expected by the officials of the Postal Telegraph Company. According to the statement of the local superintendent of the Postal company the time limit given the Western Union to remove its poles and lines from the Pennsylvania lines west has expired and the Pennsylvania company is liable at any time to repeat the action taken along its road east of the city a couple of months ago.

"Some time ago the Western Union was given notice to take down its wires and poles west of Pittsburgh, but has shown no disposition to do so," said Supt. E. Kimmey of the Postal last night. "It looks as if the Pennsylvania will have to take down all the poles and wires of the Western Union west of Pittsburgh as it did east. Some time ago the Pennsylvania company notified the Western Union that it would have to remove its lines from the property of the Pennsylvania between here and the west within a specified time. I understand that the time allotted has expired and that the Pennsylvania is likely to take matters in its own hands any day now.

"East of Pittsburgh along the Pennsylvania we will have our lines strung by the first of October. The Pennsylvania company puts up the poles and we string the wires, according to the agreement. We are practically in the same shape west of Pittsburgh as we were east when the Pennsylvania removed the Western Union by force. We have two lines along the highways west and could make connections with the Pennsylvania company at any time if necessary."

TIME TO ACT IS AT THIS MOMENT

Verse from Esther Was Taken as Basis of Sermon by the Rev. J. W. Romich.

SOME GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

Martyrdom and Its Results Did Much for the Founder of Lutheranism—Church Enterprises Should Go Forward Swiftly at This Time.

The Rev. J. W. Romich, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, Federal street, Allegheny, preached a forceful sermon last evening on the subject, "The Opportune Time." He took his text from Esther, 4-14, "And who knoweth whether thou are come to the kingdom for such a time." Mr. Romich said briefly:

"I believe that God creates and raises up men and women for certain epochs and to meet certain conditions. It was all in the providence of God that Esther had come to the kingdom at this time. This was the time for the pivotal act of her life. This was the time for her to serve God and her generation. For her to consider simply personal advantage would be criminal.

"Great crises are great opportunities, and opportunity is an open doorway beyond which are the brightest things of life and the glories of eternity. The art of seizing opportunities and binding them to some purpose is the secret of success. An opportunity is not simply a time when it is easy to do a thing, but it is a time when a thing can be done in Christ's strength.

"Martyrdom furnished the opportunity for Stephen to proclaim the gospel to his enemies. Luther's trial at Worms was his opportunity to raise his voice against terror and for God's eternal truth. We of this generation of God's children have come upon the scene of action for some noble purpose—

"We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time—
In an age on ages telling
To be living is sublime."

"This time of unprecedented prosperity is the opportune time for the laying of broader foundations for church work. All our missionary enterprises should go forward by leaps and bounds. Said Dr. Strong, 'We of this generation and nation occupy the Gibraltar of the ages which command the world's future. God has brought us to the kingdom at a time when a mighty work can be done for the advancement of the race.' Now is the opportune time.

"Who waits until the winds shall silent keep
Will never find the ready hour to sow.
Who watcheth clouds will have no time to reap."

It is said that when Luther nailed his theses to the church door of Wittenberg, his hammer strokes were heard throughout Europe. The blows that the church makes for the truth today will be heard throughout the centuries to come. Now is the opportune time to strike hard.

GOSPEL MESSAGE WAS DR. STANTON'S SUBJECT

Showed How the Word of God Was Spread from Beginning at Jerusalem.

The Rev. W. A. Stanton, D. D., pastor of the Shady Avenue Baptist church, returned Saturday after spending his vacation in western New York. He preached yesterday morning on "The Gospel Message Characterized by Mercy, Truth and Power." Dr. Stanton said in part:

We read in Luke that the gospel was to be preached in Christ's name unto all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem. As the chief Jewish city in the world, Jerusalem was the natural place for a message to start that primarily was for Jews. But remember how that city received and treated Him whose message it was; how His disciples were treated; how the message was laughed at, ridiculed and rejected. Even after all that, Jesus said it was to be preached "beginning from Jerusalem." This leads us to draw three conclusions:

First—It was a message of mercy or it would never have been delivered in Jerusalem. He who wept over the city would still be merciful to it, even though there it had been beaten, scorned and crucified. Benedictions rather than maledictions, were to be heaped upon it, so long as there was the slightest chance of winning its people to faith and repentance.

Second—It was a message of truth or it never would have been preached in Jerusalem. The things it told about had not been done in a corner. They had had great publicity. No city knew more about them than this city. There were people from every corner of the land to deny any part of the gospel story that was not according to truth. They had to be told truthfully or they would quickly be proved false in Jerusalem.

Third—It was a message of power or it never could have gone beyond Jerusalem. There its enemies were legion; its friends few; its prospects feeble. In spite of that it won great victories even in such a city. The day of Pentecost with its 3,000 converts, the 5,000 converts a little later, the origin of the mission church, the rapid strides of the few years of the history of Christianity after the death of Christ were all in Jerusalem. And it did not stop there, but was carried to the uttermost parts of the earth. Just as Jesus said it would be. It surely was a message of power.

It has in no way lost those characteristics of mercy, truth and power. They belong to the gospel message today wherever it is faithfully taught, preached and lived.

ZIONIST MOVEMENT WAS WELL CANVASSED

Members of Pittsburgh Society Gathered in Honor of Convention.

Several hundred members of the Pittsburg Zionist societies gathered in the Tree of Life Synagogue, Fourth avenue and Ross street, last night in honor of the sixth annual convention of Zionists, which opens its sessions in Basle, Switzerland, this morning. Three speeches touching upon some phase of the Zionist movement were made, and a musical program was rendered by the Zionists' choir under the leadership of the Rev. Julius Blume. Isaac Kahnweiler, president of the Greensburg Zionist society, delivered an address in Hebrew on "The Congress of the Zionists." Allan Davis, an honor graduate of the academical department of the Pittsburgh high school, spoke on "Judaism and Zionism." Mr. Davis discussed the opportunities of the Jews inhabiting Jerusalem. He enters Harvard university next month. Harry Rubinovitz of the New York Hebrew school, made a brief speech on the Zionist movement.

The temple was decorated with American and Zionist flags. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson of Allegheny, are the delegates representing the local societies of Zionists at the convention in Basle. President Richard Gottheil and wife and secretary, Jacob Delfias of the Federation of American Zionists, are the representatives of the societies of the United States. The members of the local societies are greatly interested in the convention which lasts all this week.

The younger generations of the Jews are being brought up with the thought in view that upon them largely depends the success of the movement. A society comprising the girls from the ages of 9 to 12 will be formed next Sunday afternoon. A meeting for that purpose has been called for next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the hall at No. 1606 Center avenue. Several speakers will address the girls on the Zionist movement.

DINNER WITH THE FREAKS IN BARNUM & BAILEY'S RESTAURANT

Nearly 1,000 People Enjoyed a Hearty Meal Prepared in Outdoor Cook Wagon.

DAINTIES IN BILL OF FARE

Busy Day Spent Preparing for Performances Today and Tomorrow—Big Crowd on Exposition Lot Study Life Behind the Scenes.

Nearly 1,000 people ate dinner last night under canvas, in the big lot adjoining Exposition park, Allegheny, where the tents were yesterday pitched for the great Barnum & Bailey circus which this afternoon begins a three days' engagement here, performances to be given every afternoon and evening.

This big dinner party was a strange sight for those to whom circus life is a novelty. The meal was served in a style equal to that of a first-class restaurant, and the quality of the victuals indicated that there are other artists in the circus beside those who appear on the trapeze and in the arena.

A reporter for The Gazette was one of the guests of the genial George Bowles, press representative for Barnum & Bailey, and an appetizing dinner was enjoyed amid the most peculiar surroundings. The "freaks" sat just across the aisle. Five hundred brawny workmen, hungry after their exertions under the burning afternoon sun, thronged another part of the big tent, while many of the star performers, who had not gone to the hotels, remained to do honor to the chef of the canvas cook house.

A Day of Busy Preparation.

The circus trains of 93 cars arrived in Allegheny at dawn and the day was spent in busy preparation. Six mammoth tents and numerous smaller ones, containing more than a square mile of waterproof canvas, were hoisted. More than 1,000 wild beasts were herded and caged in the menagerie. Among the workmen everyone was busy, but the performers enjoyed a holiday, and, contrary to the opinion of the average circus-goer, the Sabbath was piously spent. After dinner all hands turned in for a night of rest to prepare for the street demonstration this morning and the strenuous work of today's two performances.

At the big tables were odd but congenial companions—just over the silver butter dish sat the Russian dog-face boy, his hairy nose and spout-shaped mouth contrasting strangely with delicate white hands. Beside him sat the "human pincushion," who was engaged in an animated conversation with the "missing link." The bearded lady talked coquettishly with the skeleton dude, and the tattooed girl spoke of the wonders of Pittsburgh as she passed the sugar to the triple-skulled man.

Two beautiful girls who sat at the performers' table came in with Bibles in their hands. Through the week they spend their afternoons and evenings in tights and dance upon the slack wire, but on Sunday they never fail to attend religious services. As they came in, modestly attired in the costume of the summer girl, conversing in sweet and cultured voices of the good points in the sermon they had heard, few of the uninitiated would have suspected them to be nimble sirens whose aerial work is the marvel of thousands of people.

Personality of Performers.

People who look at the circus from the reserved seat have a misguided impression regarding the personality of the performers. But when seen at the table, in their street clothes, the actor of the sawdust ring is no more frivolous than any other intelligent American. Circus performers come largely from good homes, and the artist whose work in the tights is greeted with applause may be college bred and schooled in all the diplomatic polish and good manners of the best society.

Every guest ate with a relish, as the following bill of fare was worthy of the homage of the best of appetites:

Barley Soup.
Prime Ribs of Beef with Brown Gravy.
Roast Sirloin of Beef with Pan Gravy.
Boiled Mutton with Egg Sauce.
Green Peas. Boiled Potatoes.
Rice Pudding. Pumpkin Pie. Custard.
Cocoanut Pie.
Tea. Coffee. Iced Tea.

The superintendent of the commissary department holds an important position in a circus. No matter what delays may occur, or how hard the rain falls, he must have his meals on schedule time. His coffee must be of the proper strength, the potatoes must be cooked through, the eggs must be boiled to the minute, and the ham must be boiled to a turn.

What a Big Circus Eats.

To stock the kitchen each day there are required 2,600 pounds of meat, 145 pounds of coffee, and potatoes, beans and other vegetables by the barrel. The meat is shipped direct from the big western packers and is bought on yearly contracts. In Europe, during the recent tour, many foreign workingmen offered their services for mere transportation and board, three meals a day with good meat and vegetables and with dainties in pastry being luxuries men of their class had never dreamed of in the old world.

The carnivorous animals yesterday got no dinner. In all menageries Sunday is observed as a fast day among the flesh eating beasts, and while the elephants and ponies were munching their hay, the lions, tigers and the polar bear looked on with envious eyes. Exposition park was thronged throughout the afternoon, and the small boy was out in force to view the wonders behind the scenes.

APPOINTED MAJ. SIMMONS.

Local Philanthropist Is Made Vice President of the Sunshine Society.

Cynthia Westover Alden, president of the International Sunshine society, announced yesterday in New York that she has appointed Maj. W. H. H. Simmons of Pittsburgh vice president of the Western Pennsylvania division, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. Commenting on this appointment President Alden said:

"I believe nobody is more competent for the position than Maj. Simmons. His philanthropic work in Pittsburgh is well known all over the country. He is one of the active members of our society. Since he has been at the head of the Toy mission in Pittsburgh he has made it one of the most efficient branches of our society. His beneficent act last Christmas, especially when he gave toys to 10,000 Pittsburgh children, won him the praise not only of the members of our society but of others who esteem wise philanthropy. He not only gives, he does.

President Alden said that she expects to come to Pittsburgh soon to confer with Maj. Simmons about his new duties. Some new work is to be started here, but the nature of it will not be disclosed till after the conference.

LESSONS COMING FROM THE TRANSFIGURATION

Reason the Desciples Believed in Christ Explained by the Rev. Mr. Walter.

The Rev. J. Grant Walter, pastor of St. Mark's Reformed church, North Highland avenue and Harvard street, preached on "Lessons from the Transfiguration" yesterday morning. His text was taken from Second Peter 1, 16. Mr. Walter retold the story of the disciples on the Mount of Glory, and pointed out how strength may be gained from reflecting on the words of the Master. He said in part:

The disciples believed in the "Messiahship of Christ." Their grounds for this belief were the marvelous things they witnessed in the "Mount of Glory." The mysterious cloud, the face of Jesus resplendant in glory, the heavenly voice. "This is my beloved son, hear Him." These were ever fresh in the memory of the disciples when they, in after years, endured untold persecution.

The true disciple is always conscious of these higher visions where he can see only Jesus, and from the memory of the mountain experiences with higher visions does the disciples it was the beginning of the higher life. The disciples here were given a soul-stirring, heart-filling vision of Jesus the God-man. Great is the prophet's words of truth had never failed to impress them, but here in the cloud with the glorified around Deep they felt the presence of Jesus—the presence of God himself—as never before.

Then, too, the disciples realized as never before the meaning of the well-known words, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son." It is God as gracious Father that brings him near to us. This was behind the voice, "This is my son." What is his attitude toward the world? Here in the mount is his answer. "This is my beloved Son, hear Him." While we are at times almost the same Christ died for us.

Again the disciples were impressed with the nearness of the heavenly world. There were no strangers there. Moses and Elijah, three men still living in saintly life. Yonder are two—Moses and Elijah—who for some hundreds of years had been in glory, and there stands on the border line between them.

The vision beautiful closes. The shadows fall, the night wears on. It was early twilight. The hour of descent from the mount. Here their paths diverge. John goes to lonely Patmos; Peter turns toward Babylon, where he is to spend his last years in prison cell, while James is to pass out through the Damascus gate of Jerusalem, following the headsman with a gleaming ax. But this vision beautiful strengthened them for the days of sorrow.

Thus may every disciple go down from the Mount of Glory strengthened anew for the responsibilities of life.

S. A. Miles, general manager of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, who came here to inspect the Brunots island race track, where the big auto races will be held October 16 and 17, left last night for Cleveland. While here Mr. Miles was the guest of the Pittsburgh Automobile club at the Duquesne club, and last night he dined with W. Linford Smith, the club's secretary, and Reuben Miller, Jr., at the Hotel Schenley.

Mr. Miles visited the track at Brunots Island and pronounced it excellent. He said it would meet every requirement. The track has been leased from the Matinee club by the Automobile club for the two dates selected.

From 75 to 125 cars are expected to take part in the run. The work of the national association closes on October 15 with brake and hill-climbing tests and the local Automobile club will be in charge during the two days' racing that follow. From 7,000 to 9,000 people are expected to witness the racing.

The first car in the race from New York is expected to reach Allegheny about 10 o'clock on October 14. It will cross the Sixth street bridge to Pittsburgh and go to the Hotel Schenley, which will be headquarters for the visitors.

LESSONS FROM PRESENT DAYS

Handwriting on the Wall Has Parallels That Are Now Visible Everywhere.

DANGERS THAT APPEAR AHEAD

Belshazzar's Profligacy and Fall are Used by the Rev. L. S. Wilkinson to Call Attention to Prevailing Evils.

"The Message of the Hand on the Wall" was the subject of the Rev. L. S Wilkinson's discourse last evening to his congregation, in the Mt. Washington Methodist episcopal church. He took his text from the book of Daniel, v-5. "In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand and wrote upon the plaster of the wall of the King's palace." Mr. Wilkinson said in part:

The hour had come when Isaiah's prophecy of Babylon's destruction should be fulfilled. For 200 years a long-suffering God had displayed his tenderness toward the vilest of mankind. Unmerciful, Babylon was steeped in sin and willfulness. Her profligate kings had defied the living God, and wicked rose of the Chaldeans, whom the Hebrew prophets describe as being given to pleasure and trusting in wickedness. He who are great sinners the same Christ died for us.

Again the disciples were impressed with the nearness of the heavenly world. There were no strangers there. Moses and Elijah, three men still living in saintly life. Yonder are two—Moses and Elijah—who for some hundreds of years had been in glory, and there stands on the border line between them.

The vision beautiful closes. The shadows fall, the night wears on. It was early twilight. The hour of descent from the mount. Here their paths diverge. John goes to lonely Patmos; Peter turns toward Babylon, where he is to spend his last years in a prison cell, while James is to pass out through the Damascus gate of Jerusalem, following the headsman with a gleaming ax. But this vision beautiful strengthened them for the days of sorrow.

Thus may every disciple go down from the Mount of Glory strengthened anew for the responsibilities of life.

LESSONS THAT CAN BE LEARNED FROM MANY

Discouraged Lives Are Numerous Now as They Were in Bible Days.

"Lessons From a Discouraged Life" was the subject of the morning sermon of the Rev. Fred M. Gordon, pastor of the Knoxville Christian church. He said in part:

Recorded in the third verse of the ninth chapter of the book of Ruth, Naomi and Elimelech went a day's journey into the wilderness and there and sat down under a juniper tree, and he requested for himself that he might die. A discouraged person is always characterized with the many depressions and discouragements. It is scarcely possible to believe one character as outside of some one has spoken upon such a character study. Naomi was a type of actual conditions. Naomi it was the land of the stores that keeps him out of Canaan.

Peace was the last to acknowledge the approach of the enemy. Peace was the dear him and that with oaths and curses. Elijah, the character we are studying this evening, was discouraged for his enemies, and Jezebel, the wife of Ahab, was one of the most discouraged life in the world of God, and from it I want to draw several lessons.

First, Elijah was discouraged because the people did not reform at once. He had called them together on Mt. Carmel. There were King Ahab and 400 prophets of Baal, and 400 prophets of the grove. He had appealed to the people. He had called upon God to send down fire and consume the sacrifice that he had prepared. God did this, and more, the prophets had been slain, and he pardoned the hearts of the people did not turn to God. Are there not those daily discouraged for some such reason?

Second, Elijah was discouraged because affliction had not caused the people to repent. For three years no rain had fallen on their land and they were much suffering. Elijah was discouraged because they refused to turn to God and Elijah was discouraged. He like many today forgot that God does not drive men to Him. He leads them, but will not drive them. The parable beautifully teaches that patience is not to be used to the overthrow of evil men.

Third, Elijah was discouraged because he thought that he was the only one left. He said unto God: "I alone remain of the prophets of God." The God said unto him, There are 7,000 who have not bowed the knee to Baal." As he was not the only one of God's children who had been left in the world, and especially the church to whom Jesus said, "I will be with you always." Are we discouraged and disheartened. To some God comes with the question, "What doest thou here?" Have you left your place of duty? Have you gone down? Have you been put back where you can see Him best and keep you talking about the sad.

Fourth, Elijah was discouraged because he thought his work was finished. He had done all that he could do. He had called them together, he had appealed to their reason, he had performed miracles, he had slain the prophets of God. Are there not those who have done all they can do? Are they not discouraged? God's hands are unending and unceasing.

Fifth, Elijah was discouraged because he thought that he was the only one left. He said unto God: "I alone remain of the prophets of God." The God said unto him, There are 7,000 who have not bowed the knee to Baal." As he was not the only one of God's children who had been left in the world, and especially the church to whom Jesus said, "I will be with you always." Are we discouraged and disheartened. To some God comes with the question, "What doest thou here?" Have you left your place of duty? Have you gone down? Have you been put back where you can see Him best and keep you talking about the sad.

MUCH MATERIAL BOUGHT ABROAD

Importation of Manufacturers' Supplies Showed Great Increase Last Year.

NEARLY $500,000,000 WORTH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 23.

The manufacturers of the United States imported nearly $500,000,000 worth of materials for use in manufacturing in the fiscal year just ended. Materials for use in manufacturing thus formed nearly one-half of the total imports of the United States last year. The department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, in a table just completed, shows that the total value of manufacturers' materials imported in the fiscal year 1903 was $489,471,687, and that this formed 47.75 per cent of the total imports. In the preceding year the total value of the manufacturers' materials imported was $415,000,000, and formed 45.14 per cent of the total. In 1895 the total importation of manufacturers' materials was $247,000,000, and formed 42.07 of the total.

In the partially manufactured materials, iron and steel was the principal factor of increase. The total importations of iron and steel in the last fiscal year were the largest in many years, aggregating over $51,000,000 in value, as against $27,000,000 in the preceding year; and a very large proportion of the iron and steel imports was material for use in manufacturing. Pig iron increased from $3,000,000 to over $16,000,000; scrap iron from three quarters of a million dollars to over $2,000,000; bar iron increased nearly $1,000,000, and ingots, blooms, billets and bars of steel, from $3,000,000 to nearly $10,000,000.

REFORMER FOLEY DEAD.

Man Who Helped Rout the Tweed Ring in New York Answers the Last Call.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—John Foley, New York's pioneer reformer, who brought the famous injunction suit which ended in the rout of the Tweed ring, died late Saturday night after a lingering illness, at his home, No. 142 Lexington avenue. His health was shattered 20 years ago by his persistent fight for good government. Of recent years his son has had charge of his gold pen manufactory under the Astor house.

John Foley had an interesting career. Beginning with his election as a supervisor in 1860, he started a single-handed fight against "Boss" Tweed, and did not let up until the famous ring was swept away. In the fight against Tweed Mr. Foley was given moral support by President Grant and Gov. Tilden. At a conference in Long Branch with President Grant, after six of the ablest lawyers in New York had told him that the evidence he had was insufficient to successfully rout the Tweed gang, the president advised Foley to proceed.

John Foley was born in Ireland in 1834. He came to America when 9 years old and was educated in St. Joseph's college, Montreal. When a boy his mother brought him to New York. One day he borrowed $8 from her and bought several gold pens, which he resold. Little by little he accumulated capital, and 50 years ago he embarked in the gold pen business in Broadway, under the Astor house. In time he became comparatively wealthy.

Allegheny Dies from Imbibing Excessively of the Cold Fluid.

Charles Garsdale of Robinson street, Allegheny, died at the Allegheny General Hospital at 10 o'clock last night, from peritonitis, resulting from drinking too much ice water. Garsdale was a machinist and came home sick a week ago, to his boarding house. He told the people about the illness was caused by drinking excessively of ice water and complained of pains in his throat and head.

A physician who was called in attended him for several days and on Friday or Saturday sent for the hospital. He grew rapidly worse after being admitted to the hospital and his death resulted last night. Garsdale was a native of Norway and he had only been in the United States about nine months. He was a well-educated man and said to be well-connected in the old country. The coroner was notified of his death.

LAWRENCEVILLE NEGRO CAPTURED AT HOME

James Fields, a negro, was arrested last night about 10 o'clock as a suspicious person. He is charged with having chased and attempted to assault Mrs. Charles Schade of No. 293 Main street last Saturday night. Her cries attracted her two sons, who frightened the negro away. Fields was found in the kitchen of his house at No. 4801 Penn avenue, where Carey Campbell, colored, was shot by Jerry Hughes or some unknown man now at liberty. He was locked up in the Lawrenceville police station.

ANOTHER CARNIVAL TO BE HELD IN THE ARSENAL

Grand Army Posts Will Be in Charge from September 22 to October 3.

There will be another carnival at the famous old arsenal grounds, Thirty-ninth and Butler streets, this fall. Secretary of War Root has given permission to the Grand Army of the Republic of the two cities to use the grounds for the purpose and the festival will be held there from September 22 to October 3. James W. Bostock will out on the carnival and furnish the amusements and attractions. He is a well-known local showman and can be depended upon to prepare a fine program.

The shows and attractions to be secured, it is said, will include some of the finest and grandest to be obtained anywhere. Efforts will be made to have the various posts throughout Allegheny county designate special nights on which they will patronize the carnival, which is gotten up for their benefit. The compe of Sons of Veterans and other patriotic bodies will also be invited to attend during the two weers, and the entire period will be one of merrymaking for the veterans and their friends.

A number of sensational free attractions are being arranged by Manager Bostock, and they will include several never before seen in Pittsburgh, one of which will be the famous "Loop the Loop." The date of this carnival is an opportune one for out-of-town people. Reduced rates and special trains on all railroads will bring thousands of neighbors into Pittsburgh at that time on account of the exposition.

CARNIVAL OPENS TONIGHT.

Swissvale Borough Has a Large List of Attractions for Its Week of Fun.

The Swissvale free midsummer carnival and street fair opens in that borough tonight with a street parade and display of fireworks. Large preparations have been made. The Wright Carnival Company, whose attractions have been engaged for the week, arrived in Swissvale yesterday afternoon on a special train of 12 coaches. This evening will be press night.

Two bands will give free concerts on the grounds daily. There also will be six free acts given each afternoon and evening. The greatest will be the performance of Achille Philion, who rolls a huge ball up a spiral tower 50 feet high and then out on a four-inch cable. At the top of the tower he ignites a fuse attached to fireworks that extend the length of the tower, and in the midst of this pyrotechnic display he descends as fast as the ball can roll.

Braddock, Homestead, Edgewood, Wilkinsburg and other surrounding towns have notified the board of trade that they will send official delegations Tomorrow night will be Braddock night.

ISLANDS DEVASTATED.

Great Destruction and Loss of Life Reported Adjacent to Jamaica.

KINGSTON, JAMAICA, Aug. 23.—A schooner which arrived here this morning reports that the Cayman islands were devastated by a hurricane on the evening of August 11. Many houses at Georgetown, a village near the west end of Grand Cayman island, were demolished. The vessels in the harbor were driven out to sea; two subsequently returned, but the others have not been heard of up to August 17. It is feared that serious loss of life has occurred. All the trees and crops were destroyed and a famine is imminent. The people expect the government of Jamaica to send supplies. Seven schooners were wrecked on the east side of the principal islands.

No news had been received from Cayman Brac and the Little Cayman up to the time that the schooner left, but it is thought certain that these islands also were devasted by the cyclone.

The Cayman islands, which belong to Great Britain and are attached to Jamaica, consist of Grand Cayman, Little Cayman and Cayman Brac. The total population of the islands is 4,822.

VESUVIUS VOLCANO IS SPOUTING LAVA AGAIN

NAPLES, Aug. 23.—The prediction of Prof. Krull of Munich has been fulfilled, as Vesuvius last night burst forth in a fresh period of activity. Frequent explosions were heard and stones were thrown to a height of 600 feet above the crater, while at the same time a slight earthquake was felt. The stream of lava has again begun flowing in the direction of Pompeii, although its progress is slow. The eruption is diminishing tonight.

WHITNEY STABLE'S POOR SHOWING

Ex Secretary of Navy and Immediate Friends Drop $150,000 in Wagers on the Ponies.

BOOKMAKERS AHEAD OF GAME

GAMES TODAY.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—One of the most prominent and respected bookmakers in the Metropolitan Turf association, when asked tonight what he considered to be the dominating feature of the season's racing so far, promptly replied that it was the amazingly poor showing made by the horses owned by William C. Whitney, the results which were more far-reaching than imagined by most people. To your correspondent the veteran bookmaker continued as follows:

"I am in a position to know that the losses of money wagered by Mr. Whitney and his immediate connections on the horses sporting the ex-secretary of the navy's colors amounted less than a week ago to over $150,000, and considering the continued ill luck that the Whitney horses have been running in since that time, I feel confident that the above mentioned figures now total nearly $200,000.

"Now, as everyone knows, Mr. Whitney is the central figure around which big in Saratoga moves, and considering the master hand he is in turf affairs here, people generally have backed his horses to win. When the fact is taken into consideration that the Whitneys have the largest stable here, and enter more horses in the various daily racing events than any other owners, and that so far they have only won two small purses, it can readily be seen what a tremendous amount of money has been lost to the ring by the ill-fated Whitney string. A conservative estimate of the money this lost here, I should place at $750,000, this amount including the $200,000 wagered and lost by the Whitneys.

"Another fact that the newspapers so far have generally overlooked is that the volume of money daily wagered in the ring is considerably in excess of that wagered last year, when the most sensational accounts were sent broadcast about the vast sums of money handled by the bookmakers. Last season only 60 books were doing business, while at this meeting there are over 70 bookmakers, all of whom report a larger trade than last year. All the well-known plungers and big betters are here, with several additions to their ranks, and their individual wagers have been larger than last year. There isn't a bookmaker who hasn't made big winnings. I don't mind saying that my book is $51,000 ahead and there are several other layers whose profits so far, are in excess of that."

AGAINST THE RECORD.

John J. Scannell Thinks The Abbott Can Lower His World's Mark of 2:03 1-4.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Unable to enter his champion trotting gelding, The Abbott, against any horse of his class this fall, John J. Scannell will send him a mile against time the latter part of September. The Abbott holds the present world's record for geldings of 2:03¼, and Scannell is confident that he will be able to lower it at least half a second from this figure. Scannell tonight said:

"All the rumors that The Abbott has broken down and will not again be put in training are absurd. The horse is very fat and needs plenty of work, but he was never in better shape in his life. He is at present in Boston."

HAMBURG BELLE WELL THOUGHT OF

Owner Sydney Paget Confident Filly Will Win Futurity and Is Betting Big Money.

MAY ENGAGE WESTERN RIDERS

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Turf discussion today was largely made up of the great flight of speed displayed by Sydney Paget's Hamburg Belle in the fifth race yesterday, and the prospects of winning the Futurity next Saturday. She will have 114 pounds up, Fuller will ride her, and with her wonderful quickness at getting out of the bunch, as well as her well-known disposition of Fuller to take chances, her chance is now regarded as second to none.

That Sydney Paget thinks she will win the special race is proved by the report prevalent that he has already wagered $8,000 against $13,000 with Dick Reatrick that she will defeat her field, while C. Tillower, Jr., has also wagered $2,000 on Hamburg Belle at the same odds.

The only fillies to win the Futurity were the Butterflies and L'Alouette, and many of the best judges look to see a filly win in 1903. Careful canvass amongst turfmen in the past few days makes it appear as though Miss Elsie, Dr. Reilly, Broomstick, Keene's best, and Adbell the most dangerous of those opposed to her. Of the Keene division Israelite is rated a very fast colt, but the fact that she was not tested on Thursday because of the muddy track, thereby losing her first chances, Delbl's weight, 127 pounds, may operate to his advantage. Adbell was well beaten in the United States Hotel stake, but his owner declared that he would be able to step farther by the time Futurity day arrived.

The following is the list of probable starters, with the weights and jockeys, as nearly as can be estimated at this time:

Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.	Owner.
Broomstick	127	Odom	S. S. Brown.
Bellgrue	116	Bullman	A. Belmont.
Rain or Shine	119		S. A. Wilte.

Israelite	117		J. R. Keene.
Lightfoot	117		Wm. Hendrickel.

Adbell	117	O'Neil	J. E. Madden.
Minuit Man	122	Winkfield	J. E. Madden.
Gettysburg	122		J. E. Madden.
Little Em	114	J. Martin	W. Lakeland.

The most noticeable thing connected with this list of jockeys is the fact that there are very few first-class riders now in the east, and there is no doubt that attempts will be made to secure the services of some of the crack western jockeys, as was done last year, notwithstanding that ill success followed these efforts.

CORBETT HAS NOT RETIRED FROM THE RING

Would Be Shame to Quit, After Getting Into Such Splendid Form, Is His Opinion.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—James J. Corbett will enter the ring again if the proper opportunity offers.

Straight from San Francisco and the scenes of his defeat by Jeffries, the former champion pugilist of the world arrived in Chicago yesterday afternoon, showed the wonderful muscles that he had built up in his training for the fight, and stoutly denied that he had said he would never take on another match. As to whom he would prefer to meet after his pending theatrical engagements, he declined to say, but asked:

"Wouldn't it be a shame to say that I would never fight again after I have succeeded in putting myself in better physical condition than I ever was before in my life?

"On the same train during all the four days' trip from San Francisco, came Robert Fitzsimmons, who helped train Jeffries, but there was no publicity on the way between Jim and Bob. They don't speak as they meet, and they carefully avoided each other on the train, exchanging not one word.

"I doubt if ever is found, while Jeffries is in his present grand physical condition, Sandy Ferguson defeated. The more I think about him and his style—and I had an abundance of time on the train to do that pondering—the more I admire him. He is a great fighter," said Corbett.

Fairbanks Want a Game.

The Fairbanks are desirous of booking a game with some good fast team, to be played at West Etna park next Saturday. Any fast team desiring a game for next Saturday can be accommodated by phoning 36 Wilkinsburg between 6 a. m. and 5 p. m., or 1606-J North Bell phone, after 7 p. m.

PARKINS QUITS EVANSVILLE TEAM

Back at Roscoe, But May Join Homestead—Waynesburg at Steel Works Park Today.

OFFER TO HARRY M'CHESNEY

Charlie Parkins, the well-known left-handed pitcher of Roscoe, has jumped the Evansville Central league team and is now at his home. Parkins, who is one of the best pitchers in this section, was a star in the Central, but did not agree with the management of the team in a few minor affairs, and the other day he packed his belongings and came home.

He will not return, and it is likely that he will be signed by Homestead for the rest of the season. Manager Risher could use him, as he is most likely to be added to his corps. Parkins last summer pitched winning ball for Punxsutawney and when the season closed there he went to Newark, in the Eastern league, with Brownie Geisler, now with Brooklyn, and Woody Thornton, now with a team in Florida.

Parkins would come in handy at Homestead at this stage. The Waynesburg aggregation, which has been beating everything the first few times appearances at Steel Works park this afternoon. Kid Williams, the old Millvale pitcher, may oppose Alex Pearson on the rubber. Pearson did not report Saturday, but is expected to show up today. Jim Garner and Reddy Conley, Homestead players, are here with Waynesburg, as are also Frank Haller and Montgomery, local stars. Waynesburg plays at Homestead tomorrow and then Risher will battle with the Circuitville Antipodes. If there agree to come. If not, he will take his crowd to Roscoe. Niles will finish the week. John L. Sullivan may umpire the Saturday game.

Risher may let Harry McChesney leave before the team disbands for this season. Waynesburg will have a football team this fall and is anxious to have him coach the candidates. An offer has been made him and if it is increased he will accept. Last fall Chesney played a star half on the Pittsburgh team, under Willis Richardson, the old Brown quarterback.

The Millvale fans are still talking about the wonderful work of Low Moran, the young pitcher who helped beating the fast Steubenville team down in Ohio Saturday, after pitching a hard game for Bridgeville Thursday, raised his stock still higher in their estimation. Besides letting his opponents down with few hits he is touted as a heavy hitter and record. From 10 to 14 a game is his record. "When he strikes out a man there is no chance," said Low Wentz, his sponsor. "It is expected of him. The people on Duquesne Heights and Millvale think he is the only pitcher."

One young player that is rapidly coming to the front is John Sixsmith, of Homestead. Sixsmith, who used to play first for Harry Staley's grays, is now conducting the baseball affairs for Superman in the New England league. The Hamburg team thinks well of him and if he should leave that organization he would have no trouble catching on at the capital.

Infielder Cassidy of Homewood is home from Youngstown, where he was playing on the Rayen A. C.

Pitcher Bill Osborne, who had been with the Iona Mills, independent team, is back at Homestead. He came home early to prepare for school. His brother, Bob, is manager and playing the outfield of the Shepherd, Mich., club. They are brothers-in-law to Bill Marshall, the Dellonians, Western league, catcher.

Arch Hill, another young Homestead player, is home from Berlin, Pa., where he had been catching this summer. Manager Risher may give him a try out.

ATHLETICS SURPRISED.

Beaten by Zanesville Independent Team in Slugging Match.

ZANESVILLE, O., Aug. 23.—(Special.)—The local team put it all over the Philadelphia American league club in the presence of 5,000 people. There was nothing doing today at the baseball athletics of the visitors, to do business with Elkton, who has been signed by the Boston Nationals for next season. Elkton retired the side in the ninth inning by striking out Monte Cross and Murphy and completing Daly to first base to Wolfgang. The locals gave no quarter on errors of judgment, and might went to see the game as one might went to see Cy Young pitch ball. Today the locals won from the Boston Nationals, 6 to 5, and Manager Bonkenburger signed Elkton on the spot for next season. Score:

SWEEPING CHALLENGE MADE BY MANAGER HOWARD RISHER

Howard M. Risher.

The Homestead I. A. C. is the champion independent team of Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio, which includes everything out of the city limits. Manager Howard M. Risher yesterday issued a challenge that will make it interesting for the fans. He says he would like to play a series of games with the Pittsburgh Athletic club, they can have it on 7 will play them, but it must be a series of three games, the first to be played at Homestead. The Homestead Driving park and the third wherever the largest crowd attended the first two games.

We will not play for any money guarantee, but a purse, with a satisfactory division of gate receipts or I am willing for the winner of the series to take all the gate receipts. There shall be an impartial umpire and no home cohesion. I should suggest Jimmy McCleary.

Manager Risher has no team. He has the players and is not looking for any more. Risher has September 12, 14 and 19 open, which he will give to the Athletic if they wish to tackle his team.

STOCK MARKET SWINGS BETWEEN TWO EXTREMES

Professionals Refuse to Cease Manipulation Long Enough for Security Prices to Reach Their Natural Level.

(BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Stocks did not recover their equilibrium last week and the story of the daily movements for the stated time is simply that of the gropings of the stock market in its efforts to find its bearings. No results were reached, but it was possible that the market may have found a definite tendency had it not been for the highly artificial means adopted by the Wall street trader to assist it. This element, it has been found by experience, usually carries on its operations in a highly enthusiastic manner, with the result that the work is almost always overdone and the end to be attained very much clouded. These traders were in control probably on account of the fact that technical condition was such as to produce a trader's market. Left to itself, this market condition quickly develops the real tendency of security values, for who but the professional trader can leave reason and theory behind and intuitively follow the market's bent.

During the past week, however, the trend of prices seemed to lie within two barriers which the market movement was unable or not strong enough to overcome. In the first part of the week there was a continuance of upward swing of prices, in which manipulation played an important part and which finally had to give way under the steady stream of profit taking sales for foreign and domestic account. Then the floor operators changed their tactics and a sharp reaction followed. At the lower prices, however, another obstacle was met. Investing again made its influence felt. One or two deductions could be made from these operations. First, that at the higher range of prices is established, there is still a quantity of stock for sale. Secondly, that at the recently established low quotations, investors showed an inclination to come into the market.

Another feature which seemed patent enough during the week was that the floating supply of stock on the market was limited, as evidenced by the ease with which prices were moved in either direction at the whim and fancy of the professionals in control. Had there been any supply of stock pressing for sale it would undoubtedly have made its influence felt, as did the profit-taking sales in the earlier part of the week. When these ceased the market was quickly turned. The varying fluctuations and erratic movements of the week were natural enough, considering previous developments.

Looking back on the events which followed the stemming of the downward turn of prices, the violent upward rush which the traders gave the stock market seems to have been exceedingly ill-advised. Of course, the action assisted those who had stocks for sale, allowing weak spots to be strengthened, but at the same time it induced some investors and strong interests to resell those securities which had been bought at the lower prices. They evidently did not believe in the stability of the movement, and their judgment proved to be correct.

The contraction in credit has already produced a contraction in business where the compensation for loans has been high. Of course, this means that there will be less demands made upon money markets and the working out of propositions, in itself a step toward the cure. It is significant to note that in the west beyond reserve cities, where the loaning rates are always high compared with those of the east, the tenor of remarks made in respect to the fall in the price of securities on the New York stock exchange is to the effect that the decline is local, and that the decline in values has been simply the pricking of a speculative bubble, in which some of the participants have been injured.

The stock market ought to assume a dull condition, with important changes in either direction. As a matter of fact, dullness in the stock market is what the leading bankers are earnestly praying for. The present period in itself is certainly not a favorable one to advance prices with artificial stimulation, considering the fact that demands will be begun in a few days upon eastern bankers for funds to move the cotton and the wheat crops. Later on the corn crop will also have to be moved.

In the meantime stock market sentiment is more cheerful, although liquidation keeps cropping out and serves as a check on enthusiasm.

In the Oil Fields

The new developments expected in the deep sand territory in the lower southwest during the last week failed to materialize, and in consequence little but routine work was completed and was of no particular interest to any except those who had a financial investment at stake.

In the Gordon sand districts some better results were attained than has been the rule for a number of the last few weeks, one in high it dry. The Folsom district, in Wetzel county, furnished but one producer above the average in size. It is the South Penn Oil Company's No. 1 on the M. Mc-Intire farm and started at 200 barrels a day. In the Salem district the same company drilled in a test well on the Clark Smith farm that is a much better producer than any found in that district for several months. The well is estimated to be good for 100 barrels a day. This good showing was somewhat overshadowed by two other small producers and a duster in the same district.

To the northeast of the Pine Grove extension and on the west side of the same district operations are reaching the interesting point. By the end of the month one or more wells should reach the sand in the vicinity of the Lemaster producer, located more than a mile in advance of developments to the west of the extension. The first of the new wells due in the sand will be the Southern Oil Company and Greenlee's No. 1 on the Furbee farm, located 600 feet southwest of the good producer on the Linnville farm. A week later some test wells should reach the sand in the vicinity of the gusher on the Thomas J. Showalter farm to the northeast. The Showalter well is proving the best player in the Gordon sand districts. Since it was last shot the production has remained close to 300 barrels a day. Operators in the vicinity of the Showalter farm are hopeful of making gusher strikes, and all are anxious to reach the sand at the earliest possible day. There is less activity in developing the interior of the extension while the extension remains undefined.

The most sensational strike of the week was the South Penn Company's No. 5 on the L. C. Grimm farm, in Greene county. When drilled into the sand the well started to flow at the rate of 20 barrels an hour, but declined rapidly and is not expected to hold up at more than 100 barrels a day for any considerable time. Some good producers have been found in this territory in the last two months of very good staying qualities. To the northeast the old Emma Woods No. 1 was the best producer ever found in the Bristoria field of any other part of Greene county.

The shallow sand territory, in Ritchie county, presented nothing out of the ordinary during the week. North of Cairo some new work is starting in the vicinity of the new wells on the Hankness tract. The Berea grit producer on the Bleked farm, south of Petroleum, is not so good as first indicated when drilled into the sand. The well has been shot twice and will not make better than a 10 or 15-barrel number. There is a good deal of test work, some of it purely "dicker" starting in this county, and the chances for small pay in such pools are fairly good. This county has more experimental work under way than any other in the lower southwest. Wood, Tyler and Pleasants have a small amount of this class of work. In Tyler county, along the eastern edge, there is some new drill nearing completion. In the Middlebourne district, the South Penn Company drilled in a test on the J. F. Smith farm that is showing for a producer in the Big Injun sand. The wells in this locality get a large dose of salt water in the Big Injun and their status as oil producers cannot be determined till after the brine fluid has been exhausted.

One fair producer was completed in the "Little Germany" district, in Marshall county, and the South Penn has drilled in another promising producer on the Standiford farm, located on the west side of the Cameron and of the Marshall county development. Operations in Monroe county have fallen off somewhat of the work under way at this time is backed by some of the gas companies.

In the famous old Sand Fork district, in Lewis county, the South Penn tried for an extension on the N. Nay farm, but met with bad defeat after drilling through the sands. There is a small amount of work scattered over a large area in this county.

Near Center Point, Doddridge county, some of the well started on the strength of the Center Point Oil Company's test on the Blake-burn farm, are showing 5 to 10 per cent of the number completed. The results will not fall much, if any short of the July record. The outlook for a pool of any considerable dimensions southwest of Woodland, in Monroe, still looks good. The wells are promising with each new well drilled into the sand. It will be recalled that a few weeks ago the Southern Oil Company drilled in a test on the Sylvester Rose farm and secured a producer that started at 100 barrels a day. The good showing made by this well was accepted as the forerunner of a new Keener sand pool. Four wells have been completed since that time, and with the exception of one which was a total failure. The one drilled in last week was the Southern Company's on the Sylvester Yolo farm and is not good for more than 50 barrels. It is possible that an outlet may be found, but the chances, shown by the tests completed, are greatly reduced.

In the district on Hoke run, Washington county, new work is increasing and the results of late have been entirely satisfactory. The average size is about 25 barrels a day.

In the Wolf Creek district Cameron & Co. completed a good producer on the Lorenze farm. This well is rated at 75 barrels. The first 24 hours after it was drilled into the pay. In this and the Marietta district a large number of small wells and some dusters were completed. The shallow sand can scarcely be commended for drilling. However, it is not expensive to operate and for that reason operators take greater chances.

With the Uniontown, Plum Run and Knoxville pools in the throes of the consolidated-defined operators are casting about for new producing territory. Wildcatting is a feature in all of the counties named. The Uniontown district is credited with 500 barrels. Knoxville about 600 and the Plum Run district about 800 barrels a day.

The combined results in both southeastern Ohio and West Virginia for the month do not promise to furnish a greater amount of new production than was recorded in July. Unless some very large wells are completed before the close in the deep sand districts, it is probable that the present month will not come up to the July record.

The local fields have nothing to offer aside from the new development south of Burgettstown in Washington county. Operations in Beaver county have fallen off very much in the last few months. More than half of the wells completed in this county during the month have found a place in the duster list.

CASTLE STORY LANDS AUTHOR IN PRISON

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—Carl Leid, editor of the Vorwaerts, has been arrested, charged with lese majesty. In an editorial in his paper he stated that Emperor William intended to build a fortified castle on the island of Pichelswerder, in the river Havel.

Massachusetts Reaches New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The United States battleship Massachusetts, which was considerably damaged on August 12 by striking on Watch Hill reef, during a fog while off the Maine coast, reached New York harbor tonight. She was convoyed by the battleship Indiana and the navy tug Potomac. The Massachusetts will go in dry dock at the New York navy yard, Brooklyn, for repairs.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Hay and Grain Steady at Quotations—Flour Slightly Easier. Eggs Very Firm.

Hay remained steady all week and closed on Saturday with the same prices ruling as were in force on Monday. Straw also continued at former figures, with the market steady. Oats closed at the quotations which prevailed at the opening, and the contract in the speculative pit, with demand holding its own fairly, showed taking hold even more readily at the end of the week than at the beginning. Corn is strong, with cash lots light and prices higher. Millfeed has remained unchanged, while bran is scarce and higher.

Flour has been strong all week, jobbers selling at actual jay-down cost, mills paying keen very little, if any, attention to the quality and strength of cash wheat, which has been costing as much as $1 a bushel, with the visible supply less than for a long time. Toward the close of the week there was more stagnation in the market, but mill prices have not come down sufficiently to make any perceptible difference in local quotations, which, while quoted high, are purely nominal. Orders in hand for very large and desirable orders, remain nominally unchanged, and wholesalers express the opinion that it is possible there may be further advance before the situation is really down to a settled basis.

Sugar is firm at quotations, with refiners paying an eighth more for raws than they were quoting a week ago. Seasonably fine trade commenced to show some improvement, and a heavy September business is expected. The fact that there has been no falling off during August, which has been the dullest month on the year, is an indication of the real strength of the market. Coffee is unchanged, with reports about the same as at the beginning of the week. Teas are steady as quoted. Canned goods hold their own with a good string, tomatoes being easy, with no further change in quotations.

Potatoes are lower than at the beginning of the week, with supplies liberal. All sweet potatoes are also lower, having been steadily declining all week. Tomatoes, which were worse and high, have become much more plentiful and cheap, and the balance of the week promises of the past week has had quite an influence on grocery and ripening vegetables, which have taken a fresh start and are coming in more freely. Canteloupes are lower in price figures, but poor hold their own and are firm. String beans are steady as quoted, with prices fluctuating a little from day to day as supplies vary.

Apples are plentiful and easy as quoted. It is a good apple year, and stocks are being kept well filled, although demand is large. Peaches are in better supply than for a long time past this week, but they are far from plentiful, and prices for fancies are firm. Cantaloupes are in moderate supply and are steady as quoted. Watermelons are abundant, and quantities are still coming in. Grapes have come on at the opening of the week, although not plentiful, and prices are above the average. Bananas have been scarce all week, owing to the storms which swept the Gulf, preventing the usual shipments. It is expected the market will be easier this week.

Butter remained unchanged last Monday, since which time there has been a sufficient supply, and the situation is the same. Cheese is not so firm as it was owing to heavy receipts, but sellers are showing no undue anxiety to force sales, and the market is steady. Eggs are firm, with receipts light, and the market is strong at advanced figures.

GREAT CRUSH AT OHIO NATIONAL GUARD CAMP

Twenty-Five Thousand Excursionists Witness Review of Troops Near Newark.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.)

NEWARK, O., Aug. 23.—Probably never before in the history of Newark was there a larger crowd of strangers within her borders than today. Excursions were run on every road, steam and electric, which entered the city, and every train brought in crowds from every corner of the state, who were relatives or friends of the soldiers of the Ohio National guard in camp at the state grounds west of Newark. The street car service was totally inadequate to carry the big throngs who wished to go to the camp, although the local company had borrowed cars for the day from almost every electric road which runs into Columbus.

The great event at Camp William McKinley was the review of the entire division by Gov. Nash and Maj. Gen. Charles Dick. This great military spectacle was witnessed by probably 25,000 persons from the high bluffs overlooking the parade ground. The line was formed by the officers of Cleveland taking their position at the extreme right, while troop E, of Columbus, was at the extreme left. Between these two organizations every National guardsmen of Ohio stood, who was not sick or on guard duty, while Gov. Nash and Gen. Dick with their staffs rode down in front of the line, each regimental band playing "Hail to the Chief," as the distinguished party passed in front of their organization.

Gov. Nash then took up his position at one side of the ground and the entire division, headed by Gen. Dick, marched past in review. From the time the engineers passed until troop E brought up the rear, an hour and seven minutes elapsed.

Tomorrow the soldiers will fold their tents and by evening there will be none left except the state rifle team, who will practice over the 1,000 range.

IN THE POLICE COURTS.

Nearly 200 Offenders Were Caught During Saturday Night.

The drunks, disorderlies and other offenders gathered in Saturday night and held at stations Nos. 1, 2, 7, 8 and 9 were all arraigned at the Central police station yesterday morning. There were 115 of them, and they all got off easy.

Magistrate E. C. Negley had 39 offenders before him at the East End and Oakland stations. Frank Chalcroft of Forbes street was fined $10 and costs for firing a revolver on the South Twenty-second street bridge. George Green, colored, of No. 41 Bailey street, charged with keeping a gambling house, was lightly fined $5 and costs and the visitors caught in his place were assessed $1 and costs.

At No. 1 police station Magistrate James P. Kane disposed of 12 cases. John Urben, John Morgan, Stacey Chadwick, Andrew Urben and Joseph Schmidt were each fined $5 and costs for stealing lumber from the Standard Oil Company's works at Fifty-eighth street.

At No. 2 station Magistrate J. J. Kirby disposed of 16 cases by discharging most of the offenders. The others paid their fines.

Saturday, August 29, is the Last Excursion to Niagara Falls For $5.70 Via B. & O. R. R.

Two through trains leave P. & A. W. Depot, Allegheny, 9 a. m. and 9:30 p. m. City Ticket Office, 639 Smithfield street. Tickets, good for 7 days, now on sale at the Smithfield street, or P. & W. Depot, Allegheny.

OUTLOOK IN LONDON IS SOMEWHAT BRIGHTER

All Are Agreed That Business Should Boom, but It Is Slow in Starting.

(SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.)

(Copyright, 1903, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Aug. 23.—It is really lamentable how widespread is the predominant idea that there is ripe for a healthy stimulation of business. One meets with it everywhere and criticisms of the present state of the trade, over the dining table in a restaurant, wherever one turns, and hardly the opinion expressed that things must shortly mend and that, accordingly, some people began an assertion that the recovery has really come in May. It appears, however, that those who had come to the surprise of the market have vastly overestimated the degree of recovery on the higher basis of prices.

There was a sharp reaction, but the really improvement was not, however, evidently lost, sometimes at the close still showing more or less substantial advance as compared with a week ago.

BRITAIN OFFERS HOME TO ZIONISTS

Would Set Apart Large Tract of Land in East Africa for That Purpose.

DR. HERZL REPORTS PROGRESS

Congress Opens at Basle, Switzerland, Yesterday Amid Great Enthusiasm—700 Delegates Present, Among Them Many Famous Members of the Ancient Race.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BASLE, SWITZERLAND, Aug. 23.—The Zionist congress opened this morning with a magnificent demonstration. There are more than 700 delegates and 250 correspondents. The galleries were crowded to suffocation. Amongst the notables on the platform were Dr. Herzl, Nordau, Mandel, Stamm, Mamoreck, Bernstein, Zangwill, Sir Francis Montefiore, and the president of the American Federation of Zionists. There were many distinguished people in the gallery, including the president of the canton of Basle.

Tremendous applause greeted Dr. Herzl. His address summed up the political work of the year. He recited his successive meetings with the sultan of Turkey and the refusal of conditions, owing to non-agreement to all the requirements of the Zionist program. Thereafter Dr. Herzl, backed by the British government, negotiated with the Egyptian government for the acquisition of rights on the Sinai peninsula, adjoining Palestine. A commission composed of Zionists and Anglo-Egyptian officials, studied the ground. Action was deferred because of water conditions. Subsequently an offer was spontaneously made to the congress by a British minister of a large portion of British East Africa, with a full grant of Jewish autonomy, subject to a British protectorate. I learn Chamberlain especially is in accord with Lansdowne and Balfour and is anxious to carry through the East African plan. Sympathy was expressed by the congress today for the Kishineff sufferers.

During his address Dr. Herzl stated he had interviewed the ministers at St. Petersburg and had received assurances there would be no hindrance to Zionist activities if the propaganda respects proper bounds. Concerning international conditions, Russia is ready to alleviate in certain ways the lot of Russian Jews. Herzl declares that the Russian government is ready to use its influence with the sultan in our endeavor to secure Palestine. RICHARD GOTTHEIL.

LARGE CROWDS WERE AT THE TRACTION PARKS

Music and Vaudeville Entertained Many on Their Sunday Outings.

Ideal weather yesterday afternoon and evening brought immense crowds to the traction parks. Four bands were in attendance and with them were specialty artists whose efforts were generously applauded.

At Kennywood the Rocereto band and orchestra gave two fine concerts, and in addition there were the Star Quartet of singers and mandolin players, Lonnie Follett, the clever local child impersonator; Mlle. Dumont, coon shouter; John Murtha, the comedian; Robert Smith, club swinger, and H. F. Blaney, the local singer. The steeplechase building was crowded.

Calhoun park had Harry Clay Blaney's Rough Rider band, which belongs to the "Across the Pacific" company, and they gave two fine concerts. A grotesque number entitled "Two Thomas Cats" was played to good effect, causing lots of mirth, while Wagner's "Tannhauser" was partly given, as was Suppe's "Poet and Peasant," besides a number of popular airs and some new pieces. The Imperial quartet appeared also, while Miss Marie Laurens sang several songs. Smith and Gorman, the eccentric comedians, furnished lots of fun, while Eddie Reeves sang several ballads.

Oakwood park had the Second Brigade band. James Nestor played a piccolo solo and F. Stingone a cornet solo, both of which were applauded generously. Murphy and Palmer, the comedians, and Harry Burgoyne, the coster singer, did well. "A Night Frolic," a descriptive number played by the band, delighted the audiences in the afternoon. Selections from "The Fortune Teller," "King Dodo," Strauss' "Tales From Vienna Woods" and gems of Stephen C. Foster were also played.

The Southern park crowds were entertained by Prof. K. W. F. Guenther's Greater Pittsburgh band, with Leon Prosser, cornet soloist, and Fred Sims, trombone soloist. Crouch and Richards, the musical artists, were applauded, while Fred Nolan, the character comedian, was the cause of lots of laughter. Prof. Guenther himself played a piccolo solo that was well received.

WIFE AND CHILDREN LOCKED UP IN A SHED

South Side Police Arrested Two Men Charged With Mistreating Their Wives.

Two husbands were arrested on the South Side yesterday charged with badly treating their wives. Policeman James Pemberton and Michael Connors arrested James Cunningham of No. 808 Carson street after a hard struggle.

The policemen were informed that Cunningham had been abusing his wife and they went to the house to investigate. They found the house empty save for a small girl, a daughter of the Cunningham's. A search revealed the woman with an infant and a 3-year-old child locked up in a small shed in the rear of the house.

The woman said her husband had locked her and the children in the shed on Saturday night. Cunningham entered the house as the officers were leaving and they placed him under arrest after a hard fight.

Casper Zulk of No. 41 South Fifteenth street was locked up on complaint of his wife, who said her husband beat her. The woman will testify against Zulk at his hearing this morning.

NINE THOUSAND WAITERS TO STRIKE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—In pursuance of the declaration made yesterday that a strike would be called in all the restaurants controlled by the Chicago Restaurant Keeper's association and a number of others, the strike committee of the waiters' union will at daylight tomorrow begin to call out the thousands of restaurant employes upon whom the throngs of business men in Chicago depend for meals. At least 150 restaurants in the downtown and outlying districts will be visited by the labor committees and the leaders declare that before night 9,000 persons will be idle.

PLUMBERS WILL TEACH THE APPRENTICES WELL

Better Sanitary Conditions Will Be Obtained if Workmen Are High Class--Union Has Taken Up Matter.

Growing demands for better sanitary conditions and more perfect plumbing will be met by the journeymen plumbers of Pittsburgh by restricting the number of apprentices and creating more rigid entrance examinations to the labor unions. Local union No. 27, which has just prepared a new wage scale for the coming year, will ask the master plumbers to cut down the number of apprentices so that the journeymen will have better opportunities of teaching boys the trade. The union also will take care of the apprentices and encourage them in every way. An official register will be kept of every helper, so that in the event of their discharge work will be procured for them at other establishments.

The workmen claim that the average master plumber takes no interest in apprentices and that they are employed merely to hand things and perform menial work. The union, which now has a membership of 573 men, wants to make a better class of helpers, and every possible aid will be extended the apprentices by the official body of the workmen. At present the allowance is one apprentice to three journeymen, two to five and three to eight.

The union claims that many bosses employ additional boys under the guise of office help, etc., who in time take the places of the apprentices, while the apprentice is allowed to do odd jobs, thus doing the work of a journeyman. The new scale of No. 27, which calls for $4 for eight hours, the same rate now in force, will go into effect October 1. It is believed that it will be signed by the 200 master plumbers without any drawn-out conferences. A member of the union explained the apprentice question yesterday as follows:

"I served my time in the best shop in Pittsburgh, and during my three years there the boss never once asked me how I was getting along. Apprentices in every other trade are helped to learn all they can. Take the carpenters' apprentice, for instance. After a few days he is given a saw and hammer, and before the end of two weeks he is able to square a plank and do other useful things. A plumber's apprentice carries the heaviest load he can, totes tools and pipes, and while the journeyman works he simply stands around with his hands in his pockets.

"We believe that it is time for the union to take the matter in hand and educate these boys. They devote some of their best years to the trade, and it is nothing but right that we should do all we can for them. Our organization wants good men, and only good men, so that every member of the trade will be entitled to draw $4 and more."

DON'T GIVE SNAP FOR THE POLICE

Housebreakers Continue Work In Oakland Without Regard for Officers.

TWO MORE CASES REPORTED

Second-Story Man Frightened Mrs. Abel of Meyran Avenue, and Two Strangers Threatened Janitor of Colonial Flats if He Made an Outcry.

With a persistence indicating either utter disregard for, or else a bold defiance of the police, housebreakers and second-story men continue their operations in the Oakland district. A brazen piece of work was the attempted robbery of the home of Mrs. E. Abel, No. 242 Meyran avenue, Saturday night. About 11 o'clock, while Mrs. Abel was sitting in her bedroom on the second floor, she was attracted by a noise, and looking around saw a man peering into the room through an uplifted rear window.

Unwilling to believe her eyes, Mrs. Abel ran to the window as the face disappeared and saw a man rapidly sliding down a water waste pipe on the outside of the house. Calling to her daughter on the lower floor that a man had just attempted an entrance into her room, Mrs. Abel ran to a telephone in the house and notified the police of No. 4 station.

Meanwhile, Miss Abel, looking out into the yard, saw a man standing on the lawn. She ordered him to leave the premises. He stood perfectly still, in bold defiance, and refused to move. Finally a shrill whistle was heard and the man at once ran off. A moment later one of the officers appeared from No. 4 station in response to the telephone message. It is believed that he was seen coming by a confederate of the would-be robber, who gave the alarm.

Attempts were also made to rob two apartments in the Colonial flats at the corner of Elsinore and Craft avenues, Oakland. George Williams, the janitor, who lives on the top floor, was awakened about midnight by hearing unusual noises in the halls. Going down stairs he met two men on the second floor and asking their business was threatened with violence if he made any outcry. Fearing the consequences, Williams obeyed, while the men hurriedly escaped. Investigation showed that attempts were made to force the locks on the flats on the third and second floors.

Lew Stout and J. P. Workman, arrested Saturday as suspicious persons, will be given a hearing this morning. The boys are said to have been implicated in the robbery of the house of C. F. Harris at No. 3427 Ward street. Young Stout was released yesterday on a bond of $1,000, but the other boy was held at Central police station.

CONGREGATION WINS IN LONG AND WARM FIGHT

After Four and a Half Hours' Debate the Pastor Withdrew His Resignation.

After a stormy session lasting 4½ hours the Rev. Frederick Brand, pastor of Trinity German Lutheran church, Pride and Ann streets, put an end to further discussion by throwing up his plans for leaving his congregation. He had asked for his release that he might accept a call to Springfield, Ill., and he, with three other prominent Lutheran ministers, tried to secure the congregation to release him, but without avail.

Dr. Brand is a son of the Rev. Paul Brand, a prominent Lutheran clergyman on the South Side. He has been pastor of Trinity church for 19 years, never having had any other charge. He received a call to Springfield some time ago and yesterday a week at a congregational meeting he laid the matter before the church members and asked that he might be released to go to Springfield. The congregation was a unit in not permitting him to leave, and definite action was postponed until last night.

Last night's meeting was called at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. K. Walz of Sharpsburg, the Rev. H. H. Hein of Zion Lutheran church, Lawrenceville, and Prof. John Herzer, representing the Springfield congregation, together with Dr. Brand argued for hours to have the congregation release their pastor. The members remained firm and each vote taken was unanimous.

Ballots were taken between speeches. The remarks of the Lutheran clergymen were answered by members of the congregation. The debates waxed very warm and the clergymen soon became convinced that theirs was a losing fight. Promptly at midnight Dr. Brand arose and stated he would withdraw his resignation and would remain pastor of the church. He was warmly greeted by the congregation after the meeting.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE PARKS

Plans Have Been Ordered to Be Prepared by Director E. M. Bigelow.

CHANGE IN THE RACE TRACK

Kink to Be Taken from the Backstretch. Wants More Property at Highland Entrance—Crowds Were Numerous Yesterday.

Many park improvements are to be made this fall according to the present plans of Director E. M. Bigelow of the department of public works. Yesterday afternoon Director Bigelow, accompanied by E. G. Nicewanger, superintendent of highways and sewers, called upon Superintendent of Parks George Burke, in Schenley park, and asked him to prepare any and all plans for improvements that he might have in mind. He declared they would be considered upon his return from Washington, which he expected would be the latter part of this week.

The director recommended that Superintendent Burke at once begin changing the course of the race track in Schenley park, along the back stretch so as to avoid the sharp curve that horsemen encounter turning into the "run for home." That the track was not constructed true, originally, and that there is a "kink" in the back stretch have been evident to all horsemen who have driven over the course, and the sharp turn into the stretch proper has always been considered a dangerous one. Director Bigelow also stated that he will make an effort to purchase a triangular strip of ground at the Stanton avenue entrance to Highland park.

"I was in favor of buying that strip during my last administration, but the fund laid aside for property purchase was inadequate at the time," said the director. "It would materially beautify the entrance, and a circle could then be laid off at that entrance that would set off the several statues at that point."

The strip referred to has a frontage of 40 feet on the Stanton avenue side and runs back 200 feet, meeting at a point at the entrance to the park. There are no buildings on the property and when asked what the approximate valuation of the property was, Superintendent Burke said yesterday afternoon that he thought it could be bought for $20,000.

The advisability of changing the Forbes street entrance to Schenley park, after the erection of the Carnegie technical school, is also under consideration, but no definite agreement has as yet been reached on that point.

Owing to warm weather and a clear sky the parks were well patronized yesterday. Strangers, especially foreigners, seem to take undue liberties on their Sunday afternoon outings, and particularly is this true among parents who allow their children to mutilate shrubbery and flowers, meanwhile standing guard watching for the approach of the police.

In the conservatory yesterday afternoon a family of foreigners were passing one of the fountains when a youngster, apparently three years of age, amused himself by trying to get the gold fish out of the pond. The parents stood by and laughed at his efforts in keen delight. Suddenly the youngster succeeded in his efforts in trampling a large fish and threw it out on the walk. Several more considerate visitors at once informed an attendant, who appeared upon the scene and ordered the child to desist, replacing the half-dead fish in the water.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Mrs. W. J. Bryan and daughter, Miss Ruth Bryan, left tonight for their home in Lincoln, Neb., after having spent several days in this city. It is the intention of Miss Bryan to take up the settlement work, becoming a member of the Hull House staff early in the fall. Miss Bryan is 19 years old.

GHASTLY MURDER ONLY FAIRY TALE

Girl Who Was Supposed to Have Been Killed and Eaten Appears Alive.

ALLEGED CONFESSION IS FALSE

Father, Upon Story Told by Himself, Was Sentenced to Death for the Crime, But Emperor William Had Commuted His Sentence.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—The finding alive of Johanna Brabusha, who has just been arrested for a trivial offense, has brought to light a most remarkable case. Two years ago the woman's father, Johan Brabusha, a shoemaker at Mansberg, in Steinmark, was arrested charged with her murder. He confessed and said he had not only killed the girl, but had cut her body into small pieces and kept the flesh on ice until he from time to time got a chance to cook and eat it in company with his wife. The self-confessed cannibal told many conflicting stories of the way in which he had done away with his daughter, but was finally sentenced to death. On his judges he made the impression that he was the missing link in the Darwinian theory, and partly on the strength of his supposed weak-minded nature, and partly due to the fact that he had made a full confession, his sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life. His wife was sentenced to several years behind the prison bars for having taken part in the ghastly meals with her husband.

When Johanna was arrested the police went to work to establish her identity with the supposed victim of cannibalism and have done so. It is now thought Brabusha made his "confession" in a state of religious mania. Brabusha's relatives have taken steps to have the prisoner and his wife released, now that the supposed dead girl has been found alive, and it is believed they will have no difficulty in accomplishing this. The case has been widely circulated by opponents to capital punishment as a judicial murder, which was averted only because the emperor used his right to commute.

PRAYING FOR REVIVAL.

Circle Being Formed to Petition the Almighty for World-Wide Religious Awakening.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—(Special.)—Efforts are now making to form a circle of prayer for world-wide revival, similar to the circle which, it is claimed, laid the foundation for the great religious revival in Australia last year and the beginning of this year. Behind the movement are some of the most prominent of American divines, with a liberal sprinkling of active laymen.

There is being sent out a pledge, first to pray for a revival, and second to make efforts to induce others to do so, and the pledge concludes with the expression, held to be unusual by many, that the signer believes in prayer. It is not the wish of the movers in this enterprise to create a new organization, but simply to encourage definite appeals for religious awakening.

About 60,000 signers have been enlisted in England to date and they are to give active work during the meetings about to begin in the provinces with Dr. Torrey now at Northfield, as the evangelist. The circle seeks to pave the way for a revival in the United States a year hence.

RABBI J. LEONARD LEVY IN CAPE MAY PULPIT

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 23.—(Special.) Rabbi J. Leonard Levy, formerly of Philadelphia, but now in charge of the synagogue Rodeph Shalom, Pittsburgh, occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church here tonight, at the invitation of the Rev. George Williams, the pastor. His topic was "God's Chosen People." While at Cape May this summer Dr. Levy has been attending all the Gentile churches and is seen mostly at the Episcopal services.

Mrs. Anderson, a prominent society woman of Jacksonville, Fla., daughter of Recorder of Deeds, West, says:

"There are but few wives and mothers who have not at times endured agonies and such pain as only women know of. I wish such women knew the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a remarkable medicine, different in action from any other I ever knew and thoroughly reliable.

"I have seen cases where women doctored for years without permanent benefit who were cured in less than three months after taking your Vegetable Compound, while others who were chronic and incurable came out cured, happy, and in perfect health after a thorough treatment with this medicine. I have never used it myself without gaining great benefit. A few doses restores my strength and appetite, and tones up the entire system. Your medicine has been tried and found true, hence I fully endorse it."—Mrs. R. A. Anderson, 225 Washington St., Jacksonville, Fla.—$5000 forfeit if original of above testimonial proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America go to prove, beyond a question, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause, and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition.

Our improved devices for the proper adjustment of glasses universally admitted the most satisfactory.
